Illinois Manufacturers Attack Legislators

Declare Session Has Seen War On Practically Every Industry in State.

[By The Associated Press]

Springfield Ill Apr l 30—An effort to terminate the present session of the Illinois legislature which is declared to be attacking 'practically every industry in the state has been launched by the Illinois Manufacturers association it became known here today by the receipt of letters signed by the association secretary, urging manufacturers to co-operate in demanding that 'your senate and house members pack their grips and return to their homes'

'Business interests are in such great jeopardy at Springfield' the communication says that the only relief seems to be an immediate termination of the present session of the Illinois general assembly Practically every industry in the state large and small is the target of an attack by some kind of a proposed law The appropriations bills are well out of the way You are urged to demand that your senate and house members pack their grips and return to their homes'

LACK OF INTEREST

'So little interest is taken by the business men in what is going on that there were hardly half a dozen manufacturers in Springfield when two measures of most vital importance—the Woman's eight hour bill and the proposed state police bill—were on their passage It requires 77 votes to pass a bill in the house and 26 votes in the senate Before the land wagon rush took place the eight hour bill had only 78 votes

'An attempt was made to railroad the woman's eight hour bill through the senate by Senator Jewell making a motion that it be advanced to order of second reading without reference to a committee His motion was defeated by a vote of 29 to 11

NEED ORGANIZATION

"There are hundreds of other bills such as the one providing for the establishment of a state insurance fund for the payment of workmen's compensation, that are of vital importance to all employers There is only one way to get results so far as this organization is concerned and that is for the manufacturers and other employers in each district to get in direct contact with their senators and house members

"Please advise this office if we can have your cooperation in the movement to bring about an adjournment

The secretary of the association who signed the letter was John M Glenn who has directed lobbying for manufacturers interests for several seasons past

'About 6 o'clock we tried to reach the mine on the telephone again but were unable to do so A half an hour later another mob came to the office to search for the American Legion guns, but left when they could not find them We could not reach the sheriff's office Then Hunter received a telephone call to come to the office of the state's attorney He did not return until after midnight We did not discuss what had taken place there

Brundage Defies Governor Small

Attorney General Says Executive's Demands Exceed Authority.

Chicago April 30—Edward E Brundage attorney general of Illinois last night became made public a letter to Governor Len Small who had requested an accounting for expenditures in the attorney general's office since 1917 refusing to accede to the demand except for the period that has elapsed since the state's prosecutor

SINCE BIENNIAL REPORT

"If any information since that biennial report is desired by you within the scope of your authority of the character I have indicated, I shall gladly furnish it"

Information concerning the office Attorney General Brundage said is available to Governor Small and the public

'The constitution' the letter reads grants the governor no authority to supervise the details of management of any elective office Such officers are elected by the people and are directly responsible to them'

PERSONAL FEELING'

Attorney General Brundage charged that Governor Small's request for an accounting dating back four years prior to his inauguration, "resulted from one difference, personal to you which is the suits instituted by the attorney general to recover public money unlawfully withheld by you and your predecessors while acting as treasurer of the state of Illinois

Governor Small was tried and acquitted of charges of conspiracy to defraud the state of interest on state money in a trial at Waukegan. Other suits are pending

WANTED COMPROMISE

Intimations have been made to the attorney general from alleged friends of your administration that the dismissal of civil suits for the recovery money unlawfully obtained by you as state treasurer would lead to the signing of the appropriations bill for the attorney general in the form passed by the general assembly It is because of these things that the Attorney General is reasonably skeptical about the favorable consideration of an appropriations bill carrying items which might possibly be used to prosecute those cases instituted by the attorney general for and in behalf of the people with relation to the interest of the moneys aforesaid"

To Governor Small's inquiry concerning appropriations made to his office for 1917 1919 and 1921 Attorney General Brundage directed attention to the records

FUNDS SHORT

Stating that because Governor Small refused his appropriations it was unable to pay an accountant employed on the state's litigation involving the Illinois Central and which for his services the attorney general later continued that he was also unable to gather data or to protect the jury then trying you from being tampered with

The Lake county grand jury has returned indictment in connection with its investigation of charges of jury tampering during Governor Small's trial

Donald L Currier, the accountant referred to according to another portion of the letter 'analysed the various transactions of yourself as state treasurer showing that $2 185,000 of public money was still withheld by yourself and your associates"

The names of other persons alleged to have received money from that fund were mentioned in the letter and the amount was said to total $10 198 50

TO PREPARE DATA

In concluding the letter Attorney General Brundage reiterated that he would supply information since the last biennial accounting which, in his opinion, the governor is entitled to receive and charged that Governor Small in his plea of economy had the vision of taking money from states law enforcing department by adding it to the department of agriculture and commerce for extra jobs which he had made appointments

SCIENCE WILL HONOR BURBANK

Horticultural Genius Has Spent Fifty Years At Profession.

BY JUSTIN A. ROGERS.

(Copyright, 1923)

Santa Rosa, Cal., April 30.—He refuses to allow himself to be called a "wizard" although his wonderful work well deserves that appellation. Rather he insists he wants to be known to his fellow men as a student who has striven throughout his long and extremely useful life to intelligently follow natural laws and aid nature in improving her handiwork.

But the world will aid him in properly observing the fiftieth anniversary of his start next month. From May 17 to May 20 scientists and leaders in every walk of endeavor will assemble here in Santa Rosa to pay tribut to the wonderful genius of Luther Burbank, the leader of the entire horticultural world.

GOLDEN JUBILEE

His golden jubilee is to be noteworthy in the extreme. He truly has "made two blades of grass grow where only one grew before" and his services to humanity declared only a few years ago by Theodore Roosevelt to have been "the most meritorious in the world's history," will be emphasized by men of world-wide fame.

"The world has worn a pathway to his door," and today his every suggestion is listened to by agriculturalists everywhere. But it was not always so. Burbank came to this section, where all of his greatest experiments have been initiated forty-eight years ago unheralded and almost unknown from his home in Lunenburg, Mass.

He was horticulturalist of average fame, although even then he had given to the world the soon-to-be-famous Burbank potato, which it is estimated has in the last half century added not less than $50,000,000 to the wealth of the farmers of the Pacific slope.

TIMES WERE HARD.

For a time at the outset here he was compelled to work as a carpenter to eke out his living and to meet his expenses while he initiated his earlier experiments of "improving the growth of plants."

Despite his seventy-four years of age, the noted horticulturalist labors daily in his laboratories here and with his plants awaits the development of a single new creation from the thousands of experiments there. He hopes to have another and worth while development to celebrate his fiftieth year.

GETS MUCH HELP

From all over the world, missionaries, engineers, explorers and scientists keep him supplied with native plants and seeds which are useful in his experiments.

Among those who will be asked to come here to honor him next month are Henry Ford and Thomas Edison, both close personal friends.

DOUGLAS CO. TAXES ROLL IN LAST DAY

Tuscola, April 30—There was the usual last minute rush to pay taxes at the Douglas county treasurer's office Saturday. Until the last week the taxes here have come in very slowly and the indications were that there would be a large list of delinquents. That probably will be greatly reduced when the smoke clears away and the force at the office of Treasurer Dale Howard has had opportunity to write up the stuff that was received Saturday.

The payments received by mail and the lists of receipts that came in from the various banks of the county were very heavy. There was a line of people in waiting for their turn to pay practically all day and until well after the usual closing time at the office.

LAID MAIL ASIDE.

The force there made no attempt to handle the stuff that came in by mail, but devoted all their time to taking care of those that were there in person. All hands were busy until late at night getting the day's business into such shape that it could be disposed of for the night and it was necessary for them to put in about the entire day on Sunday working up the mail of Saturday.

SMALL BAKERY FIRE.

The Tuscola fire fighting apparatus was called out at 6 o'clock Saturday morning to put out a small fire in the bakery located in the one-story brick building, just south of the residence of Mr. and Mrs. James Huston.

ALL-SUMMER TRIP

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Jackson left here Sunday for a trip on which they expect to be away all summer. They go first to Springdale, Ark., and from there to Wichita, Kan., for visits with relatives at each of those places. They will then go to Big Timber, Mont., and expect to spend the warm months of the summer in Yellow Stone park, and other points.

FARM WORK WELL ALONG.

A great many of the farmers of this community finished their breaking of ground for corn during the last week, and the majority of the others are nearly done. While most of them have been in no rush to get corn planted, on account of the weather and the soil staying so cold,

CENTRAL J. H. TO GIVE OPERETTA

To Present "The Stolen Flower Queen" in D. H. S. Friday.

"The Stolen Flower Queen" will be the delightful one-act operetta which the students of the Central Junior High school will present Friday, May 4, at 8 o'clock, in the high school auditorium. The setting of the play is a flower garden. Many flowers enter the garden and find the flower throne vacant. The four winds usher in the butterflies, snow flakes, Jack Frost, Indian boys, autumn leaves, and chrysanthemums. Boy Scouts capture the wee king and his retinue and restore the flower queen to her throne. Other important characters are Johnny-Jump-Ups and the three heralds.

One hundred children of the seventh, eighth and ninth grades make up the personnel of the play, all of whom appear in costume.

The children will be given the tickets to sell Tuesday and reservations may be made Wednesday morning at the Central Jun or high school and at Haines and Essicks store. The tickets will sell for twenty-five cents each.

APRIL BELOW NORMAL IN RAIN

Nine Freezes with Temperature Slightly Low.

In April of 1922, more than seven inches of rain fell, and we all knew we had too much—water. The present April, which passes to its reward Monday at midnight, has gone to the other extreme, in a way. The precipitation for the present month has been 2.51 inches which is .89 of an inch below the April normal of 3.40 inches.

This would not be so bad had the water been properly distributed through the month. However, more than half of the month's fall came on the first four days of the month while the lesser part of it had been scattered over twenty-six days. The result is that some good rains are badly needed right now.

As to temperature, the month has been just slightly below normal. So far, it has been 51.8 degrees, whereas the normal for April in Decatur is 52.3 degrees. The thermometer hit the freezing mark nine times during the month, the last time on April 18. However, the rise in temperature has been gradual and ideal for the fruit crop—so far—the bloom and buds being held back so as not to suffer from any of the freezes.

APRIL STATISTICS

Sixty-seven cases of contagion were reported to the city health department in April; Measles, 25; scarlet fever, 6, whooping cough, 23 diphtheria, 7; typhoid fever, 1, influenza 1, erysipelas, 1.

There were seventeen cases of pneumonia reported in April.

The police made a total of 137 arrests in April. Twenty of them were for violating motor laws, 31 were for being drunk; 11 were for possessing liquor, 7 for manufacturing liquor, 2 for selling liquor; 19 for disorderly conduct and 8 for grand larceny.

Fifty-two deaths were reported during April.

County Clerk C. H. Patterson issued forty-five marriage licenses in April.

TERRY PRESENTS MORE EVIDENCE

Declares Tanlac Restored Hi. Recently Just as it Did 6 Years Ago.

"About six years ago I sent in a statement for Tanlac and had a great many people ask me if it were really so that the medicine did so much for me. My answer was, 'yes, indeed, even more,' and I am glad to say it all over again that Tanlac has no equal," says John L. Terry, 926 N. Third St., Springfield, Ill., the other day.

"Six years ago I was a sick man—completely run-down and unable to get a particle of relief from my troubles. My old friend, Bob Clarkson, the druggist, put me on to Tanlac, and the treatment fixed me up to where I felt like a new man, and told Bob it couldn't be beat.

"I stayed in fine trim until two years ago when I felt run-down again so I took the treatment the second time, and haven't felt the need of medicine since. But if I ever do there's only one medicine for me—Tanlac."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37-million bottles sold.

TRY OUT CAMP STOVE SUNDAY

Decatur Motorist Has Dinner on Stevens Creek.

One Decatur motorist had dinner in the country Sunday on the bank of Stevens creek. It was to try out his new camp stove and incidentally to have a few hours outing. The children in the party enjoyed it and he and his wife got about as much fun out of it as the children.

His stove is one of the camp fire kind, a grate with a windshield on one side that folds up into next to nothing for carriage. They found plenty of dry sticks for the fire. They cooked ham and eggs and everybody was as hungry as a wolf.

That stove will be part of their outfit when they go away on their two weeks trip this summer in spite of the fact that the wife says that her object in taking a vacation is to get away from her own cooking.

ENORMOUS TRAFFIC ON EAST HARD ROAD

Estimate 4000 Cars in 24 Hours.

A traffic count on the new hard road is still of interest to everybody. A Decatur man left Decatur at 4:45 Sunday afternoon, drove to Cerro Gordo and was back home at 6 o'clock. He spent some time at Cerro Gordo. His time on the road may be put at approximately one hour. Two boys in his party carefully counted the automobiles which they met both going and coming. Here is the count.

Going, from Decatur city limits to Cerro Gordo, 231.

Returning, Cerro Gordo to Decatur city limits, 146.

Total, 377.

3,770 IN TEN HOURS.

At that rate per hour in ten hours 3,770 cars would pass over that road on Sunday. Of course that rate would not hold for ten hours but it probably would hold for five hours, say from 1 p. m. to 6. But it is also true that it was a pretty busy road for much more than ten hours, say from 6 a. m. till 10 o'clock at night. That would be sixteen hours. It is also probably true that at no hour between 10 p. m. and 6 a. m. was that road without traffic. Therefore the total approximated above for ten hours may be accepted as somewhere near the real total for twenty-four hours on Sunday.

4000 IN DAY.

And this puts the traffic on the road at about 4,000 cars for every pleasant Sunday. And the road has not come into its own yet so far as traffic is concerned. As the intersecting and side roads get better the traffic on the paved road will increase. When the paved road is connected up with Springfield and Jacksonville that will bring another tide of traffic.

When Route 23 from Champaign north to Kankakee and Chicago and south to Mattoon and beyond, now under construction, is completed that will be another great tributary to Route 10. To say that this route will ultimately carry 5,000 cars on Sunday will be well inside the mark. To say that it will carry 10,000 cars would be doubtless be no exaggeration.

"BUNDLE" DAY TO BE OBSERVED

To Make One Day Campaign May 9.

A one day campaign for the collection of cast-off clothing will be made in Decatur, May 9, in the interest of the Near East Relief association. This will be the national observance of "bundle" day.

COMMITTEE.

In the local campaign a committee composed of Henry D. Spencer, J. J. Richeson, superintendent of the city schools; Earle Roberts, executive of the Boy Scouts, Mrs. A. T. Mills representing the Students' Friendship society, Mrs. C. M. Jack, president of the Parent-Teachers' federation, and Miss Carolyn B. Chandler, general secretary of the Y. W. C. A. will have charge of the work here.

DISTRIBUTE LITERATURE.

This committee had with them Sunday, A. E. Wolf, a representative from the Chicago district, who assisted in planning the campaign. The public schools and parochial schools will assist through the co-operation of Superintendent Richeson and Father J. Murphy. Leaflets containing information in regard to the work and the kind of clothing needed will be given to all the school children to be distributed in the homes. Only durable clothing is desired, as it must be made over in many cases. Winter clothing is that asked for, chiefly, as the weather in the Near East corresponds in many respects to that of this country. When collected in Decatur the clothing will be shipped to New York where it will be sorted and made over before shipping to the east. This clothing will receive much hard wear and should last a long time across the water.

CLUBS AND CHURCHES.

The appeal to the people will be made by the ministers of the churches who will talk from their pulpits and the committee formed last fall will endeavor to enlist the help of local clubs. This committee is composed of J. R. Holt, Kiwanis; W. Elmer White, Rotary; H. L. Roth, Lions; Henry D. Spencer, City club; and Rev. Harry L. Meyer of the Ministerial association.

At the present time more than 115,000 children are being cared for in the orphanages maintained by the relief association, but Mr. Wolf says that there are as many more in need who can not be cared for because of the lack of clothing and finances. In this one day campaign, however, no money will be asked, only clothing.

SCORES OF HIKERS EVERYWHERE SUNDAY

Benefit of Forest Preserve Clearly Shown.

NEED RULES FOR LAKE

Boats of All Kinds Skim Over Surface.

How Decatur could use a forest preserve was shown very clearly Sunday, the really first pleasant out doors Sunday that this part of the country has had this year.

Motorists who drove along the roads running out from Decatur and pedestrians who hiked about the lake or along the country roads in search of flowers and recreation found hiking parties at many places.

COOKING IN OPEN.

These hikers, dressed for the part were frequently found with their little fires made, handy skillets being used to cook bacon and eggs or with grills on which small steaks were being broiled, showed how greatly Decatur citizens would enjoy a forest preserve where they could go in safety and security, without trespassing, to have a day in the open.

Girls and women in knickers, wearing substantial shoes, made long healthful hikes.

TIRED OUT.

Some of the women and girls were very tired when they reached the places for which they were traveling but it was a weariness which brought harvest hand appetites, nature's rouge and a preliminary coat of tan.

Decatur's lake never was more popular and the need of early action for a unified set of rules for its use and enjoyment was never more apparent. Boats large and small of all varieties, were on the lake and the various bridges and points of vantage for looking at the body of water were occupied throughout the day by hundreds of motorists and pedestrians.

HAD TERRIBLE COUGH AND LOSING WEIGHT

Cough about gone, eats and sleeps well, and gained 12 pounds.

"In December, 1913, I had a fearful cough, and my physician ordered me to change climate immediately. I went to San Antonio, Texas, and entered a sanatorium. Left there and came to Oklahoma City in October, 1915. Had no appetite, could not sleep and was losing from one to three pounds a week. I also had catarrh of the bowels, which the doctors had been unable to relieve.

"Relatives urged me to try Milks Emulsion. I did so and began to improve, slowly at first, but steadily. My weight has increased 12 pounds. I have no temperature, and my cough is about gone. I can eat heartily, sleep well, and am working at my trade again."—V. W. Neff, 610 No. Dewey St., Oklahoma City, Okla.

Nature does wonders in fighting off disease, if given the chance. Milks Emulsion is a powerful help in providing strength and flesh. It costs nothing to try.

Milks Emulsion restores healthy, natural bowel action; it is a truly corrective medicine, doing away with all need of pills and physics. It promotes appetite and quickly puts the digestive organs in shape to assimilate food, and thus build flesh and strength. Milks Emulsion is strongly recommended to those whom sickness has weakened; it is a powerful aid in resisting and repairing the effects of wasting diseases. Chronic stomach trouble and constipation are promptly relieved.

This is the only solid emulsion made, and so palatable that it is eaten with a spoon like ice cream. Truly wonderful for weak, sickly children.

No matter how severe your case, you are urged to try Milks Emulsion under this guarantee: Take six bottles home with you, use it according to directions and if not satisfied with the results, your money will be promptly refunded. Price 60c and $1.20 per bottle. The Milks Emulsion Co., Terre Haute, Ind. Sold by druggists everywhere.

Kinks o' the Links by "PRO"

Having an even heavy course a player on reaching the green finds that his ball is almost entirely covered with mud making it utterly impossible for the player to putt with any degree of accuracy Must the player play a ball in such condition or has he the right to lift the ball marking the spot clean same and then replace it without penalty?

While mud on the ball invariably renders it unfit for play, especially on the putting green, the rules do not recognize the fact Unless some special ruling has been made, a player in stroke competition could be disqualified and in match play would lose the hole. When matches are played under heavy conditions, a special ruling is usually agreed upon, which gives the player the right to lift and clean the ball without penalty, which is only fair.

* * *

Player after using a new ball for two holes and gets on the putting green of the third hole elects to change the ball in use and replace it with a new one The ball in use looks to be in perfect condition Has the player such a right"

The rules specifically state that a player may change a ball only when it is split into separate pieces or a bad crack renders it unfit for play. An opponent if he so desired would have a perfect right to object to using a new ball for one that was in perfect shape, other than having been used in playing two holes.

Millions depend on S.S.S. to purify their Blood

SINCE the days of the Cherokee Indians, man has relied upon nature to produce certain barks and herbs to purify the blood Today, the manufacturers of S. S. S. gather thousands of tons of these certain barks and herbs annually and prepare in concentrated form, scientifically proportioned, that great blood purifier, called S. S. S. This is why S. S. S., since 1826, has been such a great success. It has meant to millions of underweight men and women a plus in their strength. S. S. S. builds blood-power. It builds red-blood-cells. That is what makes fighting power. And fighting power destroys impurities! It always wins! It fights pimples, it fights skin eruptions, it fights rheumatism. It builds nerve-power—thinking power. These are the reasons which have made S. S. S. today the greatest blood-cleanser, body-builder and success builder.

Mr. James Chaloupka, Camp Sherman School, Chillicothe, Ohio, writes: "I feel like a new man after taking S.S.S. It gave me a better appetite and cleared my skin of pimples and blackheads."

Dog Carries Review to House

Knew That It Was Late Thursday.

BY MARY SEAMAN.

Every dog lover welcomes the story of a good dog, for good dogs are always showing that they have either intelligence or what answers them for intelligence. A new dog story came to The Review the other day and it is concerned with the papers and their delivery.

In the neighborhood of Floyd Jacobs' home, which is six miles southwest of Decatur, The Reviews are taken out by some girls who use a car. As they pass the Jacobs' home the paper is thrown into the yard. The family have a young dog, not yet grown, just a puppy in fact, but one of those interesting creatures which are always on the alert and feel it their duty to do something for the family.

No, I do not know what kind of a dog he is, just that he is a dog with considerable intelligence and some thinking ability. It never really matters what kind of a dog it is, just so long as it is a good dog.

As the girls go by with the paper the klaxon on the car is sounded. This is the signal to the dog and he runs out, picks up the paper and carries it to the kitchen door where it is delivered into the right hands. It has become a daily custom and one to which the dog looks forward as his part in the day's proceedings.

Thursday evening the papers were late. The klaxon did not sound at the usual time. The dog noticed that when the hour arrived for the coming of the paper it did not appear, so he went out in the road to look for the car. There he was when the girls drove up, waiting for his paper, when always before he had waited for the signal before going for it.

If dogs do not think, and do not reason, as some people who do not know and love them well, claim, how did the dog know it was past time for the paper to appear?

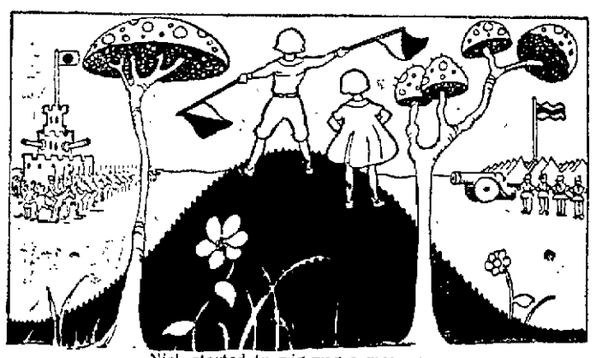
WIG-WAG SIGNALS



Nick started to wig-wag a message.

Up to the top of Gun Powder Hill in Bing-Bang Land climbed Nick and Nancy.

They carried two signal flags with them.

Gun Powder Hill was half way between the tin army and the wooden army and the Twins were going to send messages to both.

General Gold Braid of the wooden army saw them and put up his spy glasses to see better.

Nick started to wig-wag a message with his flags.

This was the message:

"PLEASE STOP FIGHTING AND MAKE PEACE!"

General Gold Braid turned to Colonel Stiff Leg. "What do you say, sir?" he asked. "Shall we stop?"

"Never!" declared Colonel Stiff Leg firmly.

"And what do you say, sir?" the general next asked Major Starch Front.

"Never!" cried the major just as firmly as Colonel Stiff Leg had.

And Captain Short Jacket and Lieutenant Chin Strap and Private Buttons all said, "Never," as firmly as school teachers.

"Then signal back 'Never!'" General Gold Braid commanded Private Buttons.

General Hobbledehoy of the tin army got the message also about stopping the war. And he turned to his men for advice.

"What do you say?" he asked Colonel Batter Coat. "Shall we stop?"

"Never!" thundered the colonel. "We'll never stop!"

"What do you say, major?" the general next asked Major Straight Back.

"Never!" roared the major.

And Captain Bow Legs and Lieutenant Shiny Boot and Private Knapsack all cried, "Never," as firmly as professors.

"Then 'never' it is," said General Hobbledehoy, and nodded to Private Knapsack to signal back the answer.

When the Twins told the Tinker Man what the soldiers said he sighed.

"Then the war in Bing-Bang Land will have to go on," he said. "I don't know what the Fairy Queen will say, or Santa Claus either."

DEWITT JERSEY CLUB GETS SEVEN HEIFERS

Boys and Girls to Raise Dairy Stock.

Clinton, April 30.—Nine registered Jersey heifers for distribution among members of the Boys' and Girls' Jersey Club, arrived in Clinton Saturday and selection of the animals will be made at a meeting to be held at the Clinton ice plant at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon.

The heifers were selected by Walter Sudendorf of the Ice company, after Farm Adviser E. T. Robbins has corresponded with almost all of the breeders in central Illinois. They were secured at a very modest price, considering their stock, coming from animals whose record in butter fat will run in excess of five hundred pounds.

TO GET REGISTERED BULL.

Those who belong to the club are Abraham and Carter Harris, Bernard Mills, Samuel Griffin, Keith Ithen and Leota Bennett. A registered bull is to be given the club by President W. S. O'Hara of the State Dairy Association, to be kept on the farm of Joe Harris.

OATS READY IN 5 MINUTES

You can cook oats now in 3 to 5 minutes, if you ask for Quick Quaker Oats. It's the quickest cooking oats in the world.

The same super-flavor as regular Quaker Oats. Flaked from the finest grains only. But in Quick Quaker the oats are cut before flaking. They are rolled very thin and partly cooked. So the flakes are smaller and thinner—that is all. And those small, thin flakes cook quickly.

Your grocer has both styles—both with that matchless flavor. Ask for Quick Quaker if you want that style.

MIGHTY POOR SLOGAN.

In reading current publications one frequently happens onto a statement to the effect that if the white and yellow races come into contact the result will be the extinction of the white race. The proposed remedy is to keep them from getting in contact, that is each fellow shinny on his own side of the ocean.

If the result of contact is as here indicated, the situation for the whites is bad indeed. How are the races to be kept from getting in contact in the markets of the world?

The notion is that the Japanese and the Chinaman will extinguish us because he is tougher fibre as a competitive force. Perhaps whites had better look to improvement of their fibre, surely had if there is justification for the statements making the rounds.

We in the United States can have tariff and other trade restrictions that will keep the yellow man out of so much of our market as we are able to supply from among ourselves. But after all this is done there will be things we need to buy from other countries, and we will take them from the yellow man if he furnishes the best article at the best price. It is the same way in other white countries of the world.

If the yellow man is most efficient, he will in time capture these world markets. If he keeps up the efficiency lick, whites need not figure on lasting a great while longer.

The plain fact is whites must not admit they are inferior as a competitive force. It is a soft and unworthy admission, and surely it need not be justified. If we are inferior we are done for, at least as anything like leaders in the world.

AND IT ISN'T EASY.

Some time last week a car driver here attempted to park along the curb of a business street. It wasn't easily and gracefully done, and one result was the stopping of other cars that were following. Then there was a jam, and next we had a smashup, with the street blocked for more than a quarter of an hour.

Some months ago they told us that parking along the curb is really quite easy, and there was assurance that after a little while it must work handsomely, almost automatically. It doesn't appear in this instance that the assurance is being realized.

You may be interested if you employ a little of your spare time in making note of the distressing efforts of many to get their cars parked alongside the curb. There are a few drivers, those born with the talent, who do pretty well; but there are a great many more who are not favored and who do not appear to be making encouraging progress. The fact is that parking along the curb is not the easy thing the regulators said.

SAVED HIS OWN HIDE.

At the time of the massacre Williamson county had a sheriff of the name of Thaxton. Lately the legislative committee had this man on the stand. They asked him what he did the morning of the killings, and he answered: "I made a right smart effort."

He had promised to meet other officers at an early hour that morning, which at the time of year and under the circumstances would mean 4 o'clock. The alarm must not have worked, for he didn't roll out of bed until 8 o'clock. Probaby it took him two hours longer to get around to the business of the day.

By the time he got around all the mischief had been done. He didn't trouble himself to make any arrests; in fact must have been the calmest man in all Williamson county throughout the piece.

Yes, at the time he was a candidate for another county office, that of treasurer. It is just possible that during that awful morning he did solicit votes and secure promises of support.

It must have been something like this, for he says it was "a right smart effort," and the record doesn't disclose anything else he could possibly have done. He won the election as county treasurer, so of course it must have been "a right smart effort." Whatever it was, it commended itself to the constituents in Williamson county.

Also our state authorities failed to do anything to break up Thaxton's little game.

ENOUGH SAVED FOR SEED.

Dr. Desloges, director of asylums for the province of Quebec, fears that in another quarter of a century most of the civilized world will either be insane or on its way to insanity. As he sees it, we are too strenuous in every way; we play too hard and work too hard, after which we haven't time for rest. It is the old story, as he sees it, of burning the candle at both ends.

But he is just one doctor in this matter, and it is some comfort to know that doctors don't agree. Others can be found who tell that no person was ever killed by hard work and then we have still others who insist that hard play is an antidote to the poison of hard work.

We who live and try to observe a little as we pass along feel pretty sure there will be a great many sane survivors if work and play are the only torments. Most people don't work hard, neither do they play hard. There are even associations to see to it that work is not overdone.

Think of the I. W. W. "Wobblies" in the country, people who don't work at all. They are not exhibited as specimens of sanity, for this is not one of their shining graces. But, according to this Quebec authority, they will last a long while. Running at large, we have a good many unbalanced people in the land, but you wouldn't pick them if looking for workers.

It may be that laziness is more deadly than hard work and hard play. If so, there is grave danger ahead.

MIGHT GET MONEY BACK.

There is a statutory provision by which a county may build a road and stand a chance of later getting from the state half of its cost. It looks as if advantage might be taken of this in building the township roads that Highway Commissioner has in mind.

The first requisite in this plan is to have the county build the road and it must act with the state highway commission, must put down such a road as the state commission indorses.

In a case like ours it would become necessary for the township to turn over to the county the funds necessary to build the road, and there is provision for this in the statute. But this would not make the road cost the township more money, likely not as much.

Later half the cost of the road might be expected to be returned by the state. In this way Vermilion county got several hundred thousand dollars from the state.

We might be able to secure a return of something like $25,000 on roads it is proposed to build in this township this year. This money could be used to help build other roads that are needed. The matter is worth some study if there is a desire to help the big cause along.

TOO RICH FOR MR. HARVEY.

They keep on telling us that Ambassador Harvey may resign and return from England. He isn't a man who needs to go out of the way to get mention of the first page, so there may be something in the frequent rumors of resignation.

A statement made is that Mr. Harvey doesn't find it easy to stand up under the expense of the mission to England. Of course he gets some salary but everyone understands this is not nearly enough to meet necessary expenses of the undertaking.

A man could go to England, live within the salary, and hold down that mission, but you would have to pick your man. Mr. Harvey is not one of these, not even if he had much of his early training in Vermont. He is so built that he must stand his turn and do as generously as the next fellow in line.

And if there is not enough money to keep up this lick, the situation after a time becomes distasteful to a man like Harvey. The man from Vermont may be so built that he insists on standing his turn while the money holds out, but never can he bring himself to feel easy when he must run into debt to do this.

THE SKY MAY FALL.

A story from Chicago tells that a church in that town has filed a petition in bankruptcy. Clerks who filed the papers remarked it was the first time they ever heard of a church going bankrupt.

It is most unusual; in fact this may be the first instance. One thought the churches were proof against this fate, but you can't tell in these times of stress and constant change.

The old experiences are proving inadequate as a measure of the times. For a long while we felt that a railroad once put down was there for keeps, that it might change hands frequently, but somehow it would be kept going. Then along came the C. P. & St. L. incident to show us we were all wrong.

And here is a churc going into bankruptcy. More people will begin to worry about what ails the old world anyhow. The sky hasn't yet fallen, but some begin to plan how they may stand from under.

WAITING TO READ IT.

We do wish that Governor Small had allowed Mr. Brundage more time to write up those detailed reports of expenditures in the office of attorney general.

In this instance the Governor asked for information that would be sure to prove interesting reading. One way and another in the past few months there has grown up a curiosity to learn who gets the money and how much. This appetite has been whetted, but as yet no provender is laid on the table. Star boarders expect better treatment.

Yes, it might have been expected that after a Terrace Gardens nightmare there would be pain in the head on payday morning.

Road oiling carried three to one in South Wheatland, but not until they took a second shot and made it plain this has nothing to do with a hundred million dollar bond issue.

Considering the big and persistent demand in the market for home talent, it should bring a good price and cash in hand.

The season is two to three weeks late, but it seems new potatoes got to town about on time.

If the rum runners are put off the sea by the navy, some of the rascals may go to making white mule as soon as they reach land.

It is noted that towns that sit up all night, say Chicago and New York, insist on getting to the front on daylight saving.

Until we arrange to make our own boats we must try somehow to get along with those brought from Lake Michigan.

There is inquiry to learn if this Hazel J. Collett, next street superintendent, is a co-ed; and we can't answer.

However, 4,000 doren doughnuts would not make the first round of a Decatur breakfast.

Mr. Weather Man will please note that wheat is two weeks late and abundant showers can be used to advantage.

ONCE UPON A TIME.

Once upon a time there was laughter everywhere
And everything I looked upon was new and wondrous fair,
The world was trimmed with buttercups and daisies, and the breeze
Sent the fleecy ships above me fairly rancing on the seas;
And I possessed an orchard with full forty trees to climb,
And I wore a little sailor suit, once upon a time

Once upon a time, though you'd never guess it now,
I had a dimple in my chin and curls upon my brow,
And fairies used to play with me and show me where they hid
And I could share in all their games and everything they did;
I knew the pictures in the books and every nursery rhyme,
I used to ride a rocking horse, once upon a time.

Once upon a time I had a dog to follow me
And we'd run off together just as happy as could be,
I used to know the summer birds and where their nests were made
And I could handle frogs and snakes and never was afraid;
I was as rich as any king with just a shiny dime,
And I possessed a ball and bat, once upon a time.

Once upon a time—oh dear, how far away it seems!
I played the very game you play and dreamed your lovely dreams.
But now I look so old to you, who are so very small,
That you can't quite believe that I was ever young at all;
Yet you shall learn, as I have learned when you have passed the prime
How very rich and glad you were, once upon a time.

ABOUT TOWN

HOW the old bromidic saying that the world is not so very large after all is proven in unexpected ways was shown in a meeting in Chicago one day last week of a Decatur man and one of the executives of the North American Power & Light Co., the holding concern which will operate the merged utilities of the Illinois Traction System and the Southern Illinois Power & Light Co.

The official is F. P. Williams and he is head of the public relations department of the company, a department which makes a business, and a very thorough business of it, too, of seeing that every misunderstanding, however trivial it may be, between any of the operating companies and a customer, is straightened out, and good relations restored.

The Decatur man and Mr. Williams had talked together for the better part of an hour. They had really finished the subject on which their discussion had been started and had adjourned to have lunch together when Mr. Williams suddenly asked:

"How's Horace McDavid getting along in Decatur?" On being assured that Mr. McDavid is one of Decatur's leading citizens, a successful attorney, president of the Kiwanis club and bearing other honors, Mr. Williams remarked:

"I came from Hillsboro in that neighborhood where the McDavids are thick and I know or knew them all."

It developed then that this man, now in a leading position in the big corporation, had started his activities as one of the force in the engine room of the power and light company at Hillsboro, had grown with and taken an interest in the company as it had taken on first one and then another of the neighboring light companies until it had grown into the Southern Illinois Light & Power Co.

Now with the larger step of merging with the properties of the I. T. S. in supplying light and power to more than 100 different communities, large and small, Mr. Williams becomes head of the public relations department of the whole system. It is a long step from the engine room of the Hillsboro plant to the executive office on the fifteenth floor of the Illinois Merchants Trust building in Chicago.

Ten Years Ago Today In Decatur

APRIL 30, 1913.

U. J. Shallenberger of Moweaqua bought the H. O. Lockhart shop at 103 East Main.

—:—

The annual report of the state mining board showed that Macon county mines took out 271,626 tons in 1912, an increase of about 16,000 tons over 1911. The M. and C. mined 117,573; Decatur Coal company at No. 2 shaft, 53,304 tons; at No. 1 shaft, 17,966 tons; at its Niantic mine, 39,742. The Blue Mound mine raised 42,441 tons.

—:—

It was the close of the fiscal year for the city and expenditures for the year had been $298,368.29.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY.

Laura A. Montgomery brought suit against the city for $5000 damages. The suit was the outgrowth of the location of the North Main street fire house, the plaintiff owning property adjoining, which she claimed was damaged.

—:—

Fishing at the river was reported good. Dr. J. W. Sanders caught a carp weighing six pounds.

—:—

An agreement was signed between James Millikin and A. R. Scott, whereby, Dr. Millikin agreed to give another $100,000 to the endowment fund of Millikin University provided the college commission raised $50,000.

They (the Americans) can never be united into one compact empire under any species of government whatever; a disunited people till the end of time, suspicious and distrustful of each other, they will be divided and subdivided into little commonwealths or principalities, according to national boundaries, by great bays of the sea, and by vast rivers, lakes and ridges of mountains.—Josiah Tucker, dean of Gloucester

VII.

Why Unity and Nationality Were of Slow Growth.

We have seen how the development of democratic institutions among the American colonists took its course from the circumstances in which they were placed. Their numbers were few and scattered, they were separated from the mother country by an ocean it took two months to cross. Their government, welfare and defense were thus thrown, to a large extent, into their own hands. In this situation, with neither king nor parliament, to help or hinder much, they sought the direct application to their necessities of those principles which at home were still pretty much in a state of theory. It made little difference to the colonists whether a certain power of government belonged to the king or to the parliament. If they needed it they used it.

This familiarity with the processes of government was something no English community could attain, and it was a natural result that in the course of a century Americans were much more politically educated than the English, and that English institutions in America were in a much more flourishing state than they were in the land where they first took root.

The bantlings were cast on the rock and had to learn to shift for themselves. They learned so well how to do it that they not only shifted without the motner country, but without each other. This is a fact to remember as we go on, for unity was to be a slow growth and nationality a slower. The status of the colonies differed: some were royal and some proprictary, and until toward the close of the seventeenth century the English at the north and the south were separated from each other by the Dutch.

The one necessity they had in common was defense, and so early as 1643 the Massachusetts Bay, Plymouth, Connecticut and New Haven colonies formed a defensive union against the Dutch, French and Indians. But unity never was an American idea. The first suggestion of it, in fact, came from the English government which urged a union at the beginning of the French and Indian war, more than a century after the New England colonies had tried their first experiment. A plan was drawn up by Benjamin Franklin and submitted to the Albany convention in 1754. It provided for a union of all the English colonies with a common legislative assembly and an executive called a president-general. But the idea was too startling for the times and awoke apprehensions all round; both the crown and the colonies rejected it.

These early indications are important to note, for they point us to the character of the political development that was going on. Each colony regarded itself as independent of the others, and it was during this early period that the idea of local self government took its firm root. Another thing that kept the colonies apart was the diverse character of the immigration that came from England. With the defeat of Charles large numbers of royalists came to the colonies, settling mostly in the South. The Puritan immigration had been to the north. Between these two groups there was something of the feeling that had kindled the fires of civil war in England; a feeling that derived partly from class and partly from religion. It was to remain, under changing forms and with important results, for many generations.

Yet there was a process going on that in the end was to overcome all these difficulties. As Englishmen these neighbors might be Cavaliers or Roundheads, Churchmen, Separatists or Quakers, but as colonists they were Americans. Nationality was at work though unsuspected. Just as Normans in the twelfth century became Englishmen because they were cut off from their own land and shut up on an island, so Englishmen in the eighteenth century, isolated on a continent with an ocean on one side and a wilderness on the other, became Americans.

But we must not think of them as being neighbors in any ordinary sense. In Virginia there were rigid distinctions of class. Here was a country life aristocracy that lived on scattered plantations and built no towns. What towns there were consisted of a court house and a church. Nobody lived in the towns, because there was nothing there to support life. A town with a store in it was a rarity—at the most there could be a blacksmith shop. This was true of Virginia generally for more than a hundred years after its settlement; even its capital, Williamsburg—a college town to boot—had as late as 1750 only two brick houses. There were no roads and no trade except that overseas, and the James River was the highway to the sea. That this aloof country life of the Southerners had its political influence in after centuries is one of the outstanding facts in our history.

But where Virginia had parishes as the local political unit, Massachusetts had towns, and consequently a different social life. Political contacts also would be closer. In New England the town was in a sense the product of legislation, as this ordinance of the Plymouth authorities witnesses: "Noe dwelling-howse shal be builte above halfe a myle "from the meeting-howse in any newe "plantacion without leave from the court, "except myle-howses." This would bring the settlers clustering pretty closely about the church. Gregariousness made for trade, and the New Englanders were craftsmen and shopkeepers rather than planters. Perhaps it was for similar reasons that they became so powerful in conversation—they had a government of talk. All of New England was a parliament.

Where South Carolina started out with a plan of government devised by a couple of English philosophers—Locke and Shaftsbury—with orders of nobility all neatly ranged, New England began as a thorough democracy, its government being administered by mass meetings where all public laws and regulations were made. Here was no delegated authority, every citizen appearing and speaking for himself. Nothing like this was known in England. Only when the New England colonies spread beyond the bounds of a single settlement was the representative system introduced. Then we see local legislatures everywhere, and with them the growing idea that they provided all the government the colonies needed. Even this early centralization was an idea repugnant to democratic thinking, and was to grow more so, as we shall see.

LANDIS PLUMBERS GET WAGE BOOST

Chicago, April 30.—Journeymen plumbers working under the terms of the Landis building trades award have been granted a wage boost of 12½ cents an hour, effective May 1, it was announced Sunday. They will now receive $1.15 per hour. About 650 men are affected.

GIRARD MAYOR IS GOOD DRY SLEUTH

Girard, Ill., April 30.—Five hundred gallons of liquor was confiscated at the outskirts of the city Sunday after Mayor Riffey had pursued in his automobile one of three trucks bound for Springfield and weathered a fire from the driver's revolver.

The trucks had stopped at a garage for repairs and when the mayor asked the drivers what they were transporting, and got the answer "olive oil," an inspection was made. In the excitement that followed discovery of liquor one driver attempted a getaway but was captured by the mayor.

The men gave their names as Joe Bownarita, Sam Locata and V. T. Sorko, all of St. Louis. A heavy guard was placed around the jail as a precautionary measure.

FIND MAN'S BODY IN SANGAMON RIVER

Springfield, Ill., April 30.—The body of an unidentified man apparently fifty years old, was found in the Sangamon river, seven miles north of this city Sunday. Officials say the condition of the body indicates that it had been in the water for sixty days. The only means of identification is the letter "N" on his belt buckle.

World Court Foes Are Split Into 3 Groups

Sincere Isolationists, Those Who Want More Details and Group Wanting More Participation.

By Mark Sullivan.

(Copyright 1923)

Washington, D. C., April 30.—Those who are opposed to Harding's World Court are divided into three groups. It will help to make the situation clear if we treat first the group that is not primarily concerned with the Court at all, but is composed of persons who, in the back of their heads, for one reason or another, have the wish more or less definite, to get Harding out of the presidential race.

Their motives are various. Some of them sincerely could make a better showing in the election next year.

PERSONAL FEELING.

Some others merely would like to have harding out in order to have in the White House a man who is their personal friend in the sense that Harding does not happen to be. Some other state leaders feel that as to their individual states, they could get more Republican votes next year with some candidate other than Harding, some candidate who, for one reason or another, appeals to individual states, though not necessarily to the country as a whole.

THE ISOLATIONISTS.

Consider next the group that is against Harding's court, partly because they are sincere isolationists, partly because they are opposed to any and every court as being in their view some kind of a foreign entanglement, and partly because Harding's Court is tied up to "The League of Nations." Several of this group have taken to cover since Harding's speech. Some of them, who are sincere party men, have abandoned their opposition permanently.

They say the leader of the party has now spoken, and as faithful subscribers to party discipline they will get in line with Harding. But many others who are now quiet until the effect of Harding's speech dies down, will later renew their opposition to the Court.

SEE COMPROMISE.

As between Harding and this group, the plan that will ultimately be attempted is to make a compromise which has already been outlined in this correspondence. It is a compromise by which the selection of the judges will be taken away from the League of Nations and given to the ambassadors and ministers of the various nations resident at Brussels. This compromise is so obvious and so likely that it may almost be spoken of as the program.

MOST FORMIDABLE.

But we now come to the third group which, in the judgment of the writer, is decidedly formidable. This is the group which opposes Harding's Court, not because it is too much of a Foreign Entanglement, but because it is too little. They oppose Harding's Court because it does not go far enough. They are in favor of a very much more powerful court, a court which shall have, what Harding's Court does not, namely, compulsory jurisdiction.

In this suggested more powerful court, for example, any nation would have the right to lodge before the court a complaint against the United States, just as a citizen does in a civil court, and thereafter the court would have the power to cite the United States to come in and defend itself.

BORAH IS LEADER.

The most conspicuous of the advocates of this more powerful court is Senator Borah of Idaho. Those who believe in it include some powerful persons. For example at the same meeting at which Lord Robert Cecil spoke in Des Moines, a woman judge from Cleveland, Judge Allen, made a speech in favor of the Borah type of court, which was so well received by the women that it is described as having more or less put—Lord Robert Cecil's own speech in the shade.

The aspect of this more powerful court, which appeals to many, is that it includes the idea of outlawing war, in the same sense that at various times in the past slavery has been outlawed, and polygamy. A good deal is going to be heard, during the next few months, about this matter of outlawing war.

THEIR STRONG POINT.

Senator Borah and the thousands of idealists throughout the country who believe in the outlawing of war, make a strong point by saying that an internal revolution against any government is already outlawed, while a war between two nations is not outlawed. Whenever anybody starts a revolution, the nations of the world instantly forbid the shipment of arms to the revolutionists; but when a war starts between two nations, the other nations promptly begin the active supplying of arms to the belligerents. Senator Borah and those who believe with him say, that war between nations can be outlawed the same as revolutions are, and more so.

The point about Senator Borah's Court is that it is an alternative, not merely to President Harding's Court, but actually to the League of Nations itself. Senator Borah and his followers propose to end war by judicial action, instead of ending it, as the League of Nations proposes, by political action. It is quite within possibility, indeed, it is almost probable, that as the debate develops in the senate, it will take the form, not of substituting Senator Borah's Court for President Harding's Court, but rather of substituting Senator Borah's Court for the entire League of Nations.

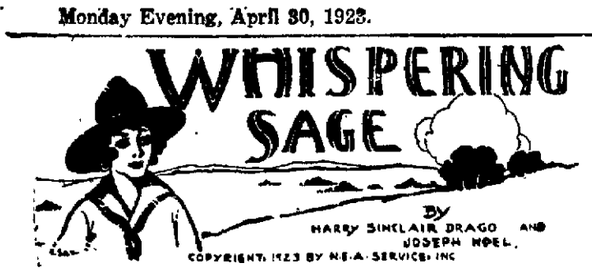
WHISPERING SAGE



By HARRY SINCLAIR DRAGO AND JOSEPH NOEL.

COPYRIGHT, 1923 BY N.E.A. SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

For revenge upon Dick Acklin, big boss of the Double A ranch, Buck Bodine, new owner of the old Webster place, plots with the Easques of Paradise Valley to blow up Acklin's dam. Through her little blind brother, Basilio, Mercedes Arrascada learns of a mysterious journey taken by her brother Esteban. Mercedes traces Esteban to Bodine's ranch. From there she follows the trail until she becomes exhausted and falls many times, scratched and bleeding.

NOW GO ON WITH STORY

To the girl it was an eternity before the moon peered through the tops of the tangled cedars. Trees and brush began to take shape. Mercedes went on. She found a tiny spring trickling to her right. She wet her lips with its water and followed its course. Soon she caught the beat of waves. She had come out to the shore of the lake. She cried out with new courage. Her voice rolled over the water to the cove where her brother lay.

Esteban jumped at the sound of it. He had already waited long past the appointed time to send the raft adrift. The echo of that cry in the awful stillness decided him to tarry no longer. He cupped his hands to his lighted match, and the long fuse began to sputter. The wind at his back was strong and steady. A healthy push, and the raft with its deadly load floated away across the silvery water.

He did not wait to speculate on the success of its errand. He had had hours of that. Before long he was dashing for the buttes, intent only on reaching the valley.

His going brought no sound to the girl. The moon had given her her bearings, and keeping ever within sight of the lake, she stumbled to the north, dragging her tired body to new tortures. A glowing pin-point of fire moving across the water caught her attention. Its even, unhurried flight fascinated her. It was beautiful, unreal, ghostly. But as she watched it, the raft moved out of the shadows of the opposite shore into the full light of the moon.

She knew what it was then, even before the wind had sent it close enough to make recognition possible. The truth left her strangely unmoved. She even found herself admiring the cleverness of the men who were responsible for it. They had schemed well to beat Acklin. The never-halting approach of the raft, the black bulk of the mine rising from its surface, the glowing fuse held aloft as if it were a light at a masthead, brought no cry from her lips. This was the thing she had come to stop.

It came so close to her that she could hear the spattering of the fuse. An eddy or a whim of the wind caught the raft then and sent it away from the shore. She could not swim a stroke. Just what she intended to do she did not know; but she knew she could never reach it, sliding along as it was, fifty yards from the bank. She found, however, that she kept abreast of it as she followed the margin of the lake toward the dam.

This was all very well for a time, but as she came to a cove that cut back into the hills she began to despair. By the time she had got around it, the raft would be far ahead. But without looking back she started on the attempt. She had not made more than half of the way, when she darted a glance at the moving raft. Her breath actually stopped for an instant at what she beheld. If it had been a liner making port the raft could not have turned more accurately and headed more directly for the little cove on the shore of which she stood. Mercedes ran toward it. She saw its speed slacken. Then came a second when it seemed to stand still. The next minute the current was moving it back into the lake.

Without stopping to ask herself what she would do, or how she could get back to the land, if she once on the raft, she jumped for it. The force with which she leaped was impetus enough to send her sailing through the water until the cove was yards behind her.

She scrambled to her feet and ran, her boot-heel ground the coal to ashes.

She lurched toward the center of the logs, her arms lowered to help lift to a sitting position, when a scream was wrung from her. The glowing coal that she had stamped into the cedar was gone, but in its place rose a blaze a foot high!

A little trickle of oil had seeped back to where she had crunched the end of the fuse. The wind had fanned an unseen spark to life.

The flames were mounting higher and higher, sending out greedy tongues that licked at her body. In a rage of helpless impotence, she raised her torn hands and struck and beat the iron thing before her. The cuts on her knuckles and fingers bled afresh, but she was fast losing the power to feel pain. Salty tears ran into the corners of her mouth. From her lips came a wild, almost insane cry.

SALTY TEARS RAN INTO THE CORNERS OF HER MOUTH. FROM HER LIPS CAME A WILD, ALMOST INSANE CRY.

CHAPTER XXVIII

The Rescue

ESTEBAN was coming to the higher ground where his trail turned to the south when he heard a horse whinny. He had to put his hat over his mount's nose to keep him from answering. The other horse called again; nearer this time. The boy did not wait. He wheeled and galloped back over the path he had just come from. When he had retraced his way some two miles, he turned to scan the lake far below him. His pulse jumped as he caught sight of the flaming logs, now so near the dam that from where he watched it seemed they must strike any minute. What had gone wrong? What had set them afire? Had his companions been caught by the Double A men?

Esteban moved higher up to wait for the explosion. In the confusion resulting from it he intended to make another dash for Webster Creek. No matter where Romero and Bodine were, they must be counting the seconds even as he.

And while he waited the Double A men, from Disaster Peak to the Bull's Head, kept their watch, unaware of the danger that was sweeping down upon them. Kildare alone, of all Acklin's riders, moved nervously about. Blaze had not forgotten his talk that morning with Mercedes, Esteban's mysterious trip, coupled with Mortow's belief that trouble was brewing, seemed to argue more than mere coincidence.

He was within a quarter of a mile of the water when he caught the first dim reflection of the burning raft. From where he stood the fire seemed to be on the other side of the canyon. He could not see the lake itself, but the faint red tinge in the sky moved. By that he knew that something was burning on the water. There wasn't timber of any sort east of the dam. He sent My Man into a gallop.

In kaleidoscopic fashion he saw the mine; the petrified girl shielding her face from the flames; the dam twenty yards away. He cupped his hands, and called to her.

He did not stop to ask how she came there. He only saw the leaping flames, and guessed the intent of the black thing that bulked on the surface of the raft.

Nothing could save the dam. It was doomed! A minute or two, and it would be all over. Jumping to her rescue would not help. If he ran out on the dam both of them would be killed or swept away and drowned.

He called to Mercedes; but she barely moved her head. Blaze called again. That voice! It seemed to come from leagues away; a phantom voice!

Kildare saw that she did not move. He cried out again. The wind whipped the sound of it behind him. But the girl looked up. She saw him and raised her hands. Blaze jerked his reata from his saddle-horn and ran to the very edge of the bank.

"Take off your skirt," he cried, "and wet it and wrap it around you. Catch my rope when it drops."

Mercedes nodded her head.

The raft was within ten feet of the dam as his reata began to play through his fingers.

Seconds—they are hours sometimes—were droning by as his rope circled lower and lower. There would never be time for another trial. He had to make it now! There was no room for a miss.

An instant—brief; life seemed to stop. Kildare blinked his eyes to clear them of the film that blinded him. Seconds were moving at express-train speed; yet even so, meaningless, irrelevant thoughts presented themselves in their entirety. Nothing seemed hurried. He had thrown his rope. In quite its accustomed way, it leaped out. He watched it now. It was dropping. The girl's hands were still upraised. The rope was falling over them. It was at her waist. He was pulling then. It was subconscious effort!

A scream rose from Mercedes; she shot away from the raft. He could look down and see the water cascading over her as he dragged her through it.

He heard the raft bump the dam. Some one was calling; Chet or Melody, no doubt. A second in which to brace his feet, and hand over hand he began paying in his reata, lifting her to safety. She was half way to the top of the ragged wall when Kildare felt rather than heard a snap. His hands tingled. He had been dragging his rope over the ledge, using the rock for leverage. One of the strands of the finely woven reata had given way—cut in two by the jagged quartz.

His arms trembled. There was nothing to do but risk the chance that the unraveling reata would hold. He leaned out over the water until Mercedes was a dead weight on him, and pulled. Another strand broke, but he had raised her to the top. His hands caught her arms; a last lift, and she was beside him.

Then it came without warning—a trembling of the earth. Thunder rolled in his ears. The dam was gone. They were down, knocked flat! My Man went to his knees. Pieces of rock, from the size of a pea to big, jagged fragments of granite that would have killed had they struck, rained about them. Water splashed down in sheets.

Mercedes did not move. Kildare rolled her over and over. The girl's body was cold; her pulse seemed to have stopped. Blaze slapped her, and beat her with the flat of his hands. He continually raised her arms to expand her lungs.

Rub on Good Old Musterole

That cold may turn into "Flu," Grippe or, even worse, Pneumonia, unless you take care of it at once.

Rub good old Musterole on the congested parts and see how quickly it relieves the distress.

Colds are merely congestion. Musterole, made from pure oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other simple ingredients, is a counter-irritant which stimulates circulation and helps break up the cold.

As effective as the messy old mustard plaster, it does the work without the blister.

Just rub it on with your fingertips. You will feel a warm tingle as it enters the pores, then a cooling sensation that brings welcome relief.

Braves and Phils Are Cruel to Mr. Bentley

McGraw Told He Must Use Care In Picking Work for $65,000 Hurler.

BY JOHN B. FOSTER.
(Copyright 1923.)

New York, April 30—Baseball men are today recalling what a smart International league manager said recently regarding $65,000 Jack Bentley. If the Giants want to make Bentley a success, said this man, "they must pick the right kind of clubs for him to pitch against."

He meant that Bentley, in his opinion is not a rough and ready who could do his best against all comers.

That is nothing exactly new in baseball because there are few pitchers who have not found some one club a sharp sword to them. There are championship clubs, too, that have found some pitchers whom they cannot hit even if the pitchers happen to be on tail end clubs.

DUNN KNEW HIM

This International league manager went on to say that Dunn had made Bentley a power in that league because he knew exactly where to place him. Certain clubs which he didn't mention always found Bentley easy and others even if they could hit him a little happened to have pitchers against whom Bentley batted like wild fire.

The Giants now have tried Bentley twice in the National league once against Boston and once against Philadelphia. Both clubs showed such a liking for Bentley that he doesn't want to speak to them again.

RUTH'S DRAWING POWER

Ruth played an exhibition game at Patterson. The spectators saw him make a home run and then rushed to the Yank, boxes, to look the Bambino over. What did they care that the game was called because their desire to see Ruth made it impossible to play? Which is additional proof that lots of fans are fans because of Ruth.

In 77 games that were played in the major leagues this season 56 were won in the eighth or later innings. A big proportion of the total. That is an eye-opener as to the intensity of the game. It may also convince some pitchers that they must learn to pitch nine full innings and demonstrate to batters that they have 27 per cent in their favor at the so called "tail-end" of the bat.

GIANTS AND REDS

The Giants and the Reds have been the better finishers in the National league. New York has won three games in the ninth and one in the eighth. Cincinnati has done better if anything having won one in the eleventh, two in the ninth and one in the eighth. Brooklyn, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh each have won one in the ninth and the Cubs have won two in the ninth and one in the eighth.

In the American league the Clevelands so far hold the long distance win record. Twice the Indians have won in the eleventh and once in the tenth. Detroit has won two in the ninth and Washington the Browns and Boston have each taken one game in the ninth.

The St. Louis Cardinals have one eighth inning victory. The Athletics have one and so have the Chicago Americans.

QUESTIONS.

ONE — Pitched ball strikes several feet in front of the home plate. The moment it so strikes the umpire calls ball. The ball then strikes the batsman. What about it?

TWO—Can pitcher stand to the side of the rubber and feint his windup, then throwing to first in an effort to catch a runner napping?

THREE — Umpire calls balk on pitcher, who then delivers the ball to the batsman who hits a home run over the fence. What is the proper ruling,

FOUR—Can a pitcher get on the rubber without having the ball in his possession?

FIVE—If pitcher is standing on rubber and runner on third starts for home, what must he do in order to have the right to throw the ball to the catcher in order to make a play on the runner?

ANSWERS.

ONE—Umpire called the play too quickly. When the batsman is hit by the wild pitch which struck in front of the plate he is entitled to first.

TWO—It is a balk if a pitcher is off the rubber and starts to wind up.

THREE—Calling of balk instantly suspends play. No consideration is given the fact that the batter hit a home run. He continues at bat. All base runners advance one base.

FOUR—It is a balk if he does.

FIVE—All he needs to do is step off the rubber. Then he has a right to make a play to the plate as any other base. If he remains on the rubber and delivers the ball to the catcher it is a legal pitch and the batsman can strike at the ball if he so elects.

EASTERN QUINTETS PLAN WESTERN TRIP

Yale and Princeton May Both Be On Michigan's Schedule.

Ann Arbor, Mich., April 30—Basketball teams of Yale and Princeton which are now arranging for a preseason tour of the Middle West, may stop off at Michigan for games with the Wolverines next season, according to Edwin J. Mather, basketball coach. Negotiations with Yale and Princeton are now under way, but no definite arrangements have been made.

Michigan has a 12-game Western Conference season scheduled. Conference rules permit only three additional games or a 15-game season in all. The scheduling of Yale and Princeton would mean that only one game could be slated with the Michigan Aggies instead of the usual two.

Yale won the eastern intercollegiate title this year. Princeton was last year's winner, and this year tied with Cornell for second place.

GOSSIP of the RING

BY FAIR PLAY.
(Copyright 1923)

New York, April 30—Popular pressure may cause Tex Rickard to shift opponents in the Milk Fund route set for May 12. But he will not make the change unless he has to. The demand is that Luis Firpo be substituted for Floyd Johnson as an opponent for Jess Willard. Nine out of ten men think this would be a far better fight and certainly more of an attraction than the present arrangement.

But Rickard doesn't wish to make the change because of his objection to having either Willard or Firpo beaten at this time. Both are too valuable as drawing opponents for Jack Dempsey in the near future and there is no good business reason why they should destroy each other. Let us destroy some one else.

Jack Dempsey's outcry in behalf of Johnson as well as Kearns' story that Jack has bet a thousand on Johnson is sheer ballyhoo, of course. It is a scheme to whip up interest in Johnson. How well it will succeed we know not. Watch future developments.

WEST'S MARKS SURPASS EAST

Drake Relay Records Better Than Those At Penn.

[By the Associated Press]

New York, April 30—The speed and prowess of the west proved superior to the best of the first major outdoor track and field tests of the season, it was revealed Sunday by a comparison of the performances in the Drake relays at Des Moines, Ia., and the historic relay carnival at Philadelphia Saturday.

While the fact that more favorable track conditions prevailed at the western meet than at Franklin Field probably influenced the calibre of rival performances, the fact could not dispute the decisive superiority of the west which hung up better marks on ten of the thirteen major events on which a comparison of the meets is based.

Runners at the Drake meet also clocked at faster time than Eastern ers in four out of five university relay championships while in special track and field events marks recorded at Des Moines were better in six out of eight instances than those made in Philadelphia.

ILLINOIS NINE IS MEETING HAWKS

Chicago, April 30—Undefeated so far this season, the University of Illinois baseball team will seek another western conference victory by clashing with Iowa at Iowa City today. Illinois and Michigan lead the western conference nine with a percentage of 1.000. The former has won three games and the latter two.

Illinois defeated the Hawkeyes earlier in the season but since then Iowa has shown improvement demonstrated in its victory over Chicago.

Purdue, without a game to its credits for this season, will play Ohio State, the victim of Michigan in its only conference game to date at Columbus today. The victor will leave the other trailing the Big Ten teams.

Chicago and Illinois will meet at Urbana on Wednesday with the Illinois favored to give the Maroons their fourth setback.

Card and Pencil Spoils Many Good Golfers

By Mike Brady

Western Open Champion

BRADY.

For those who are ambitious of becoming skilled golfers I know of no better advice than to forget, for a while, the card and pencil, forget competition and PRACTICE.

The card and pencil have spoiled more good golfers in the making than any other factor in the game. They breed illusion in a player's mind as to how his game is progressing. He scores 110 today and 105 tomorrow and thinks he is improving.

Chances are that he merely has been lucky. His 105 may be fundamentally worse golf than his 110. In playing for a score he is very apt to acquire the habit of playing the safe shot rather than the correct one.

If he is doubtful of his ability to carry a hazard he will go around it. Obviously that gets him nowhere. It may save him a few shots in an occasional round but it tends to convert him into a cautious stilted golfer with limited possibilities.

His real route to progress is to forget his scores, take some lessons and practice, practice, practice.

If he is really keen for golf he will soon discover that there is a surprising amount of satisfaction in practicing, studying and analyzing his own game and experimenting on shots with all the different clubs.

Every new thing learned is an elixer and a further incentive. Chick Evans and Walter J. Travis are two wonderful examples of men who never feared to practice.

EVANS READY TO MEET COMMIES

Number of New Faces to Be with Nee's Entry.

BY G. H. ALLEN
Of the Evansville Journal.

Evansville, Ind., April 30—With a ball club that looks as good as any in the league and better than some of them, local fans look forward to the season opening Tuesday with high hopes.

A big parade and celebration under the auspices of the Elks club has been planned and strong efforts will be made to bring the Three Eye attendance cup to this city.

Decatur opens the playing year here with three games and Danville follows the Commies. Evansville then goes on a six day trip to Decatur and Danville.

GREAT OUTFIELD

Johnny Nee with the Evas for his second consecutive year, has brought together a gang of players that look good to the most pessimistic. There is an outfield combination hard to beat. Babe Gansel with the club last year plays center field and Horace Milan and Shag Thompson hold down the other outer garden positions.

Thompson and Milan played with Three Eye teams last year and their records are very good. They have done a lot in scaring the hopes of Evansville fans.

DUGGAN ON FIRST

There is no apparent weak point in the infield. Elmer Duggan with Terre Haute last year is on first base along with Charles Barnaby who came here from the Pacific Coast league. Both are very good first basemen and will probably remain with the club. Duggan is hooked to play in the game with Decatur Tuesday. On second base is Pete Hughes who is a vet of the Evansville squad. Hughes is a whiz with the stick and fields perfectly.

NEES UNDERSTUDY

At third base is Green who comes here on option from Chattanooga. He is a very good hitter and fielder and is counted on to do a lot for the team. Irving short-stop is Decker who comes from the west. He has had considerable experience in minor league ball and it looks like he is here to stay. Skipper Nee and Decker will probably alternate at the shortstop job Tuesday.

PIPER CATCHERS

There are now three catchers with the club and one of them must be cut loose. Which one to release is a question. There is Patterson who was here last year and Olds Furman who comes from the Wichita Falls club. They are indeed good men and very handy with the stick. The same can be said of Nick Beumel, backstop man who comes from a semi-pro team in Bell City, Ind. He has been showing up very good and he deserves a job. Patterson and Furman will probably work Tuesday.

KIMPLING TO HURL

Myron Kimpling with the club last year will probably start the mound work Tuesday. Faulkner, a California man is slated to work also. Faulkner is an exceptionally good pitcher and should go well. The pitching staff is a good one and little trouble is expected with that department.

Assumption-Pana.

Pana, Ill., April 30—The Assumption High school track team proved too strong for the locals here Saturday winning by a score of 90 to 6. Pana's best showing came in the 880 yard dash where local runners made a clean sweep.

In the high jump the visitors did the same thing. The grade school meet was a close affair with Pana nosing out a 45 to 42 victory.

50 yard dash—Riley (A), Brown (P), Johnson (A). 05 2 5.

100 yard dash—Campbell (A), Johnson (A), Brown (P). 10 4 5.

220 yard dash—Campbell (A), Johnson (A), Brown (P). 24.

440 yard run—Campbell (A), Breen (P), Bryman (P). 58 4 5.

880 yard run—Conrad (P), White (P), Bryman (P). 2 20.

120 yard high hurdles—Johnson (A), Wilson (P), Greene (P). 19.

220 yard low hurdles—Riley (A), Graham (A), Wilson (P). 29.

Mile run—Cidel (A), Linder (A), White (P). 5 45.

Discus hurl—Johnson (A), Lutton (A), Chezeska (P). 91 ft. 11 in.

Shot put—Lutton (A), Sibert (A), Cilbride (A). 39 ft. 6 in.

Javelin throw—Lutton (A), Brannan (A), Chezeska (P). 120 ft. 11 in.

High jump—Campbell (A), La Rochelle (A), Law (A).

Broad jump—Brown (P), Johnson (A), Chezeska (P). 19 ft. 5 inches.

Pole vault—Walters (A), Johnson (A), Sennezy (P). 9 ft. 4 inches.

In the grade school meet Assumption defeated Pana 45 42.

Commies Off to Open Season at Evansville

O'Brien Likely Choice to Face Evas in First Game—Win Final Exhibition Battle.

Manager Charlie Miller led his band of fourteen Commies to Evansville Monday morning where on Tuesday they will help Johnny Nee and his Evas stage a baila opening. The trip was made via Mattoon the locals getting out of here at 10:25 o'clock.

It is doubtful if there is ever a manager in the history of the Three Eye League who opened a flag race with such a small squad of players for but sixteen open the season on the pay roll of the Decatur Fans Association.

With the possible exception of one or two spots, Manager Miller is satisfied with the band of players he has collected to represent Decatur and but few changes if any are expected to be made.

Pitcher Reynolds who has been training down at Bristol, Tenn. is the sixteenth member of the local squad and is expected to arrive in the Indiana town Monday afternoon or Tuesday morning.

TWO HARD LOSS

The Commies are meeting two of the strongest teams in the league in their first six games at Evansville and Terre Haute and if they can return home with an even break it will give the locals a chance to get a flying start on the other clubs during the twenty games in May.

Johnny Nee and Roberts have both lined up good ball clubs. The Indiana cities with plenty of cash in the exchequer have always been able to secure high class talent and this year is not expected to be an exception.

O'Brien, the Chicago lefty expected to be Manager Miller's choice to face the Evas tonight, if he doesn't draw the assignment it will no doubt be Mulstead. Jack is fast rounding form and it's a good bet that he will be on there to greet the Three Eye to-day Friday.

WIN FROM CHAMPAIGN

The Commies won the final exhibition game of the season Sunday at Staley field from the Champaign Legion team by a count of 7 to 6. The locals were not doing much hitting against Chief Pittser but he blew up in the sixth when four hits on balls, two errors and a hit gave Decatur six runs and the ball game.

Manager Miller sent three pitchers against the Legion boys using Kelly Mulstead and Freeman in the order named. The visitors took a liking to Kelly's offerings and slammed out seven of their nine hits in the first three frames.

Mulstead and Freeman who divided the next six frames each allowed but one hit.

VISITORS RUNS

Lambright opened for the visitors with a single through second. Den Peden sacrificed him to second and he went to third on an infield out. Bert Ingwersen cracked a single through Brausen and Lambright counted.

Peden's single, McCann's sacrifice and McQuay's hit gave the Legion men their second run in the third.

A pass to Thompson, hits by Mulstead, Pittser's sacrifice, McCann's error on Lambright's offering and Peden's second hit gave the Champaign nine its third and final run in the fourth.

ONE BIG INNING

Pittser went skyward in the sixth after having held the Commies to two blows in the first five innings. Brausen walked and Miller did likewise. Gross went out to Lutton and Miller was also passed filling the bases. Pittser kicked Fitzgerald's roll and Brausen counted. Lutton also walked forcing in Miller. Tom McCann was called in the box. McCollister hit to him but he fumbled and Calbert scored as the Commies drew up to their first two runs. Lewis grounded out but Fitzgerald scored. Olsen went up to bat for Mulstead and sent a long single which scored Freeman and McCollister. Brausen popped to Lambright ending the inning.

Gilbert's triple to center and Fitzgerald's single to right gave the Commies one more in the seventh.

BLOOMERS LOOK TO HAVE GOODS

Jackson Has Lined up Fine Group of Players.

BY FIELD H. YOUNG,
Bloomington Pantagraph.

Bloomington, Ill., April 30—The dashing Bloomer boys are all set for the 1923 Three Eye league opening at Decatur on Tuesday. Manager Bill Jackson making his debut as the local leader has corralled a dandy bunch of ball players and will lead his team to the starting wire with an equal chance of taking down the Three Eye flag for the coming season.

FIVE OLD MEN

Just five players remain from the 1922 team and of this lot two of them are pitchers. Reliable Pat Harkins will do the bulk of the twirling and will be relieved by Ford when the latter player is not playing first base. Ford comes from the Texas league and looks mighty good. When the Texas league players start hitting Manager Jackson will try at the initial corner.

FISHER AT SECOND

Ray Woolworth last year with the team will be at second, Neal Finn from Vernon of the coast league will play short, Pat Bridgrove with the team in 1919 will work at third and Jackson got Lambright from Portland of the Coast league during the winter ready to step into Hits shoes in case he falters.

Bill Holloway who played the field last year will play left, Bleeker brought out during the winter from the Coast league will cover right field when Coveleski is not pitching and Swanson will be seen in right field.

PITCHING STAFF

The pitching staff will be composed of Coveleski, Bloss, Finn, Lewis, Engle, Tinney, Young, Hamby, Howard with the latter two Bloomington fans. Hutch Hart of the Central league, Brown of the Coast league, O'Neill of the Southwestern league, Wright, Coast league.

DONOHUE TAKES THIRD STRAIGHT

Red Hurler Blanks Cubs By 3 to 0 Score.

Cincinnati, April 30—Pete Donohue won his third straight victory and pitched his first shutout of the season in defeating the Chicago Cubs, 3 to 0, in a beautifully played game Sunday. He allowed four hits, three of which were doubles, and gave four bases on balls in the first four innings, but every hit and every walk came after two men were out. From that time on, not a Chicago runner reached first base. The Reds bunched hits of Aldridge in the third and sixth innings for three earned runs.

Moline, Ill., April 30 — Bobby Coltrin has a snappy ball club lined up for Moline's entry in the Three-I league pennant dash this season. He expects to score his first victory of the season here Tuesday when the Plows open with Dick Breen's Peoria outfit.

On second base Coltrin has Meyer, the classy little ball player who was with the Evas two years ago; at short he will play either Brovold, a fast little fielder and runner secured from Seattle or handle the job himself; in center field will be McKnew, a Plowboy in '20; on first the fans will see Earle Sykes, former Bloomington boss, in action; left field will be occupied by Quellelch, an experienced ball player secured from Portland, while Doane, the Evansville slugger, will be in right. Wright will play third. He played with Danville a part of last season and hit .288. Shandeling will work behind the bat, while Coltrin is likely to start Holland on the mound in the opening game.

Shandeling, the catcher, hit .311 with the Sioux City club. He has made quite an impression on the Plowboy fans and indications are that he will beat Minintree out of the job as receiver for Coltrin's club.

At the close of the '22 season he was sold to Portland. He is a big peppery fellow and has displayed plenty of ability during the spring training. Moline purchased him from the Coast league club.

Coltrin's pitching staff is not very strong, but he expects to strengthen considerably before the season progresses very far. He has several wires out at present for slabsters and hopes to have a new one in camp before the opening day.

The Plowboys did not show much class in exhibition games, but the fans have confidence in Coltrin and believe that the scrappy little shortstop will make a real manager and will give Moline a winning ball club.

BAIT For BUGS

By H. V. MILLARD

Elmer Young, well known Decatur boy who with his family has been spending the past few months in California writes that he saw Eddie Hemingway pole three hits out of four times up with Sacramento, April 24. One of the blows was a double and Eddie was the whole show for the Seals. They lost 4 to 3.

Hemingway as well as Young sends his best to all Decatur friends. Elmer said he was sure pulling for the Commies to come through again this year. The Youngs leave Tuesday for Portland, Ore., and expect to arrive there May 20.

A report out of Madison, Wis., and published in The Chicago Tribune says that Rollie Williams may remain there to assist Jack Ryan with the Badgers. How come?

Bill Jackson sure handed out the blue slips Sunday following the Flint game, ten boys being cut loose from the free meal list.

Marion Leonard, former Forrest high school star, who is now at Centre college was second high point man in the big Southern intercollegiate track meet held at Gainesville, Fla. He won three events, the shot, high hurdles and high jump. Pretty good work for a freshman.

Dan O'Leary was a wild man Sunday at Bloomington and we will admit that some of his Flint players pulled enough to give any one gray hair. Jess Runser will join Dan at Flint Tuesday and he sure will be welcome.

Bloomington Pantagraph: It looks like old times to see Dan O'Leary out on the third base coaching line begging for runs. Dan begged in vain. He already has seen the light, however, and paid the Decatur Fans' association $750 Saturday for Jesse Runser. Runser was one of the best shortstops that ever performed in this circuit but was not appreciated there. He is sure to help Dan.

The Pyotts defeated the Beloit Fairies in a wild 12 to 10 game Sunday. Otto Pahlman secured three of the twelve hits made by the Pyotts. Ray Dammitt played left field for the winners. Eddie Holloway, former Decatur second sacker, was banished for kicking over a decision.

Five Peoria rookies drew their releases' Saturday, the list including Jake Seithers and Henry Nullmeyer, Peoria, semi-pro hurlers, Pitts and Opeka, Chicago semi-pro hurlers and Infielder Eddie Ratdke. None of the boys showed sufficient stuff to stick.

Moline merchants are giving away prizes for the opening day game Tuesday. Here is the list. Wouldn't be a bad idea for some of the Decatur boosters to dope out a list something similar:

First home run—Leather traveling bag.
First run scored—Mallory hat
First three-bagger—Silk shirt.
First base hit—Hat.
Second score—$5 hat.
Second base hit—Straw hat.
First stolen base—Dress shirt.
First walk—$5 meal ticket.
First sacrifice hit—Gillette safety razor.
First home run (either team)—100 cigars.
First, second and third base hits, first run, and first home run—Choice of a bat for each feat.

Are the fans close observers. The new Review score board had the leagues in the following order. Association, National, American, Three Eye. They were temporarily put up that way owing to special hooks on the Three Eye board. At least a dozen fans called our attention to it. They are now in the proper order and everyone will be satisfied.

Joe Dicenzo Wins Lombard Meet for Toluca Track Team

Galesburg, Ill., April 30.—Through the supreme efforts of the fleet Joe Dicenzo, who won three dash events and smashed two records, Toluca high school with a total of 16 points, won the annual Lombard Interscholastic track and field meet here Saturday afternoon.

Peoria High tied with Champaign for second place at 11 points. Forest finished third with 9 and Rock Island fourth with 8 points. Peoria Manual collected four points.

DANCEY STEPS OUT.

Bert Dancey of Forest was another big prize winner in the meet, winning a first in the low hurdles, a second in the 50-yard dash, and a third in the 100-yard dash. In all he scored nine points, enough to give Coach Cliff Merrill's team third place in the meet.

Hamm of Toulon, a dark horse in the meet, cleared the pole vault at 11 feet 6 inches to win this event.

NEW WORLD'S RECORD.

In an exhibition event, Harold Osborne cracked the world's high jump mark, leaping 6 feet 7⅞ inches. The former mark was 6 feet 7 inches.

His feat of turning the trick was one of the feature events of the day.

Eddie Krourek and Ray Watson were other exhibitors who performed during the games. Several thousand fans were present to witness the games.

FEW NEW FACES WITH HUT TEAM

Six of 1922 Champs Ready to Face Danville.

Hollocher	Second Base
Urban	Shortstop
Dunning	Right Field
Drew	Center Field
Lord	First Base
Miller	Third Base
Shelly	Left Field
Robertson	Catch
McDonald	Pitch

BY RALPH H. WHITE.

Terre Haute, Ind., April 30—Tuesday is the day.

That's when the Three-I league flag campaign will be inaugurated out at Athletic park, Danville Vets opposing.

New faces will be many in the ranks of the club which last year gave Terre Haute its first championship in twenty-one seasons. To begin with the Champs are in new hands. "Ernie" Robertson having taken the managerial role from the capable shoulders of Bob Coleman, '22 pilot. "Bobby" will be behind the bat in the opener.

It looks as if R. Miller, the spring training "find," will be stationed at third base, held down last season by "Spud" Campbell, now with the Indianapolis A. A. Indians. Either Tureen or Lord will hold down first base. The former is by far the better fielder, the latter the better hitter, it is held by the management. Jim Riley was last year's guardian of the first stopping place. Nick Urban will be at his '22 spot, shortstop.

QUESTION AT SECOND.

"Halfpint" Hollocher or "Dyke" Brannigan will cavort at second base. Holly was a member of the Hoosier champions last season, clubbed .300 and was recognized as one of the bright lights of the flag bearers. Brannigan was secured from Moline late last year and broke in at short in the last few games. He was booked for a crack at the hot corner job, but Miller flashed so much natural ability and slugging power that the new comer was put at second to fight it out with Hollocher.

OLD HEADS IN GARDEN.

Three old heads, "Sal" Dunning, Hal Drew and "Dutch" Shollenberger, will be in the garden, but only two of last year's pitching staff are in the fold. They are "Slim" McDonald and "Lefty" Miller. It is in that department that the locals loom up as lacking. Lukanovic, Glock, Utt are strangers of promise while Kremer and Bennett may come through. Much was expected of Butler and Thompson, signed for the Huts by Bob Quinn, of the St. Louis Americans, but they failed to report. The same is true of Stumb, placed here by the Minneapolis A. A. outfit.

He has quit baseball.

AFTER PITCHERS.

One thing, though, I fhelp is needed in the slab department. It will be forthcoming before it is too late. Lines are already being yanked and yanked viciously in an effort to bolster up the staff.

There'll be the usual parade on opening day with the players of the rival forces riding in buzz wagons. But all the preliminary stuff will fade from memory once the teams line up at 3:30 for the initial battle of the '23 campaign.

Can the Coals repeat?

SEMI PROS ARE WITH DANVILLE

Real Strength of Vets Not Known At This Time.

BY "RED" HUGHES.
Danville Morning Press.

Danville, Ill., April 30.—There will be several semi-pros in the lineup which Manager Rudy Hulswitt will start Tuesday. For this reason, the real strength of the Veterans cannot be ascertained. The broken leg sustained by Lefty Wilkus which keeps him out of the lineup for six weeks is a very serious blow to the Danville club.

WASEM LISTED.

Ruedy from the Texas league is due to start in right field, Chandler from the Kitty league will be in center, Fritz Wasem, a familiar figure in the III, will be in left field, Fiebig will be at third, with Obet or Kingston at short. Hulswitt is worried about the shortstop assignment. Both lads are semi-pros. Bieber, another amateur graduate, will be on second, with Ted Miller, the roving sailor boy ball player from the Western association, on first.

RUDY MAY PLAY.

Sengstock, who was with the club last year, Ascherman and Jacobs, two semi-pros, comprise the catching department. Pitchers in camp are Hutton, Hagenburch, a semi-pro, Farley from the Kitty league, Ahlman, semi-pro, Chandler, Kitty league, Hirberenick, Ruffing and Kimmell, all semi-pros. It is possible that Rudy Hulswitt will start the season at second base.

WITH ROCKFORD.
BY FRANK LANDER.
Of the Rockford Star.

Rockford, Ill., April 30.—In general the Rockford team appears to be much stronger than the one which appeared for this city last year in the Tri-Optic. Owing to variety of incidents and accidents the lineup of the Rockford team is far from settled. The probable batting order for the opening day is: Thrash, lf; Zitzke, ss; Walters, 1b; Maguire, cf; Pratt, rf; Levinson, 3b; Brant, 2b; Riggsby or Stokes, c; Beck, Landry, Schuler, Brinley, Collins, McCracken or Adkins, p.

This lineup leaves out the hard-hitting Joe Weidell and George Lebeau, infielders Newhouse and Thelen, catcher McCann, and pitcher Kerns.

SUNDAY GAMES

Ivesdale, Ill., April 30—An eighth inning attack gave the locals a 3 to 0 win over Cerro Gordo Sunday. It was a pitchers battle between Ritter and Quinn with the former whiffing 19 men.

Warrensburg ...000 012 101—5 11 5
Maroa .....003 000 0000—3 9 6

Macon, Ill., April 30—There was a real baseball opening staged here Sunday with Mayor Moser tossing the first ball and everything. However the Decatur Gray's spoiled all the celebration by taking an 8 to 2 victory.

Bill Badorek hurled fine ball for the visitors allowing but two hits.

Grays .....003 200 021—8 9 4
Macon .....200 000 000—2 2 2

Badorek and Knoor; Hughes, Lambrecht and Lebret.

INDIANS WIN.

The Decatur Indians handed the Cunninghams a 11 to 5 defeat at Fairview Sunday afternoon. Duncan and Duncan worked for the winners while Francis and Hagen formed the losers battery.

Manager Jack Robb of the Indians is looking for out of town games. Write him at 450 North College or call Main 4612.

SOME CONTEST.

The North American Union baseball team found the Decatur All Stars to its liking Sunday and put over a 20 to 4 win. The winners got 26 hits with Hunt leading the attack with four blows, two of them doubles. Sablotny and Hart fanned 16 men for the winners. The Union team is looking for a Sunday game.

Vegetable Fat Producers and Manufacturers Face Gre at Year

Business Will Be Well Over $165,000,000

Industry Experiences Great Increase During Last Few Years.

BY J. C. ROLL.

(Copyright, 1923)

New York, April 30.—Producers and manufacturers of vegetable fats and oils are prepared for the greatest year they have ever known. The increase in consumption of vegetable fats has been such in late years as to make it one of the great businesses of the country and has enhanced the value of vegetable oils at least 50 per cent.

"The people of the United States will purchase $165,000,000 worth of vegetable fats this year," F. M. Barnes, head of the Edible Oils and Fats division of the Proctor and Gamble company said today. "This is $1 50 for every man, woman and child in the United States The total consumption of fats, both animal and vegetable probably will be between $7 50 and $8 for each inhabitant.

GAIN ON LARD

"The consumption of vegetable fats now has reached 79 per cent of the lard consumption and this does not include the vegetable oils used in cooking and salads which swell the total vegetable fat consumption by 127,000,000 pounds every year

The total consumption of edible fats and oils in the United States for the present year will be about 4 600 000 000 pounds of which amount over half or 2 960 000,000 will be used for cooking Whereas twenty-five years ago lard was almost exclusively used for cooking it now forms only 42 80 per cent of the total for that purpose"

The basis of much of the vegetable fats and oils is cotton seed and the increased cotton acreage this year is being paralleled by active preparation for increased production in the cotton seed mills

SPECULATIVE BUYING CHECKED

Distributors of a dozen basic commodities and manufactured products agree today that the slackening of wholesale buying throughout the country which has been a feature of the business situation for two weeks represents a check not to buying for consumption but to buying for speculation Prices and conditions have progressed far toward relative stabilization and the opportunity for sweeping speculative profits and the probability of extreme changes either up or down have been materially lessened

This is well illustrated in the textile trades The amount of cotton, wool and silk actually going into consumption is such that speculative buying by manufacturers even has been reduced to a minimum

VOLUNTARY DAYLIGHT SAVIN

Scores of cities throughout the entire west voluntarily on a basis of daylight savings time today irrespective of lack of city ordinances providing for the change in state regulations prohibiting changing of clocks

In Philadelphia for example clocks were not changed but banks stock exchange commercial houses factories and stores opened for business one hour earlier than usual and closed an hour earlier All banking institutions have some one in charge an hour after their closing time to accommodate out of town banks to care for maturing paper and provide for any legal technicality Thus the agricultural sections will observe standard time and the city residents will select the hours for labor they desire in scores of districts

NO MAY DAY TROUBLE

No important labor difficulty seems in prospect as May 1 when many old wage agreements terminate approaches Increases in wages have been almost universal in the majority of industrials and in many cases these have been made voluntarily by employers Labor leaders do not profess themselves as satisfied with these concessions but the wages throughout the country in many instances are high above the fixed scale and individual workers busily employed and with overtime and bonuses at their command are not impressed with the necessity of arbitrarily fixing a mark below what they find now in their pay envelopes

CARPENTERS WAGES.

St Louis April 30—Wages of carpenters in this section will be increased from $1 10 to $1 25 an hour May 1 Roofers will secure an advance from $1 to $1 25 an hour with foremen getting $1 30 Hoisting engineers will be advanced from $1 12½ to $1 25 for one scale and from $1 25 to $1 37½ for another scale Sheet metal workers will be boosted from $1 to $1 25 an hour

DETROIT EMPLOYMENT.

Detroit April 30—The employment record for the last week shows a further increase of 2 620 to a total of 340 200, a new high total for all time

HOUSTON SHIP CHANNEL.

Houston, April 30—Word has been received from Washington indicating that $1 100,000 will be allotted to the Houston Ship Channel project from the last rivers and harbors appropriation This sum with an additional $500,000 which it is hoped to raise will insure completion of the channel

MARKET PRICE SAGS STEADILY

Sugar and Oil Developments Pave Way for Bear Pressure.

New York April 30—Prices sagged steadily throughout most of the list during the morning Recent disquieting developments in the sugar and oil issues made the shares susceptible to bear pressure losses of one to two points being quite common Milling up of the call money rate to 5½ per cent while regarded as merely incidental to May first payments had a restraining effect on business and there was comparatively little pool activity

American Locomotive California Petroleum Pittsburgh and West Virginia and Virginia Carolina Chemicals preferred were among the few issues to successfully combat the downward trend of prices the gains ranging from 1 to 5 points American Express dropped 5 points Market Street Railway second preferred Canadian Pacific 2½ and House on Oil

WHEAT CLOSE IS UNSETTLED

Lack of Offerings and Weather Forecast Lead to Upturns.

Chicago April 30—Selling cut by the part of the holders of July contracts who wished to avoid accepting delivery tomorrow had a bearish influence on the wheat market today during the early dealings July and September being affected as well as May Favorable weather for completion of spring wheat seeding was an additional bearish factor Estimates however indicated that abandonment of winter wheat acreage this season had been exceeded only once in the last ten years helped to steady the market

Opening prices which varied from the same as Saturdays finish to 1¼c lower with May $1 23 to $1 23⅛ and July $1 21¼ to $1 22 were followed by moderate setback all around

A subsequent temporary lack of offerings together with a forecast of unsettled weather in the northwest led to a sharp upturn in prices but for the most part the gains failed to hold

The finished was unsettled at 1 net lower to ⅜c advance with May $1 21⅜@$1 21⅝ and July $1 21¼ to 1 21⅜

Corn and oats declined with wheat After opening ⅛c to 1c lower July 80¾c to 80⅞c the corn market continued to sag

Announcement that like vessels had cleared from Chicago today for the first time this season and had taken away from here 1 000 000 bushels of corn gave decided strength to the market later

The close was firm 1¼ to 1⅞c net higher July $

Oats started unchanged to ⅜c lower July 4 ⅜c later all the months showed a loss

COTTON MARKET BREAKS SHARPLY

BY GEORGE D WOLSON

(Copyright 1923)

New York April 30—Cotton broke sharply today with July off half a cent at 25 35 and October at 23 85 during early selling Liverpool proved weak reports from a large banking institution in India closed the spring scrim, a very decided influence on sentiment in foreign [illegible]

Bull contracts a rapid break nearly a cent in the selling movement which started at the beginning of the session and this threw a great deal of cotton on New York stop loss orders were uncovered during the decline being found in both old and new crop positions

A decline in sugar and securities with greatly improved weather over Sunday brought out a quantity of cotton during the morning Lively rally seemed to attract contracts from some quarter It was not until December sold at 23½ that a greater degree of resistance developed but the tone continued heavy Instead of substantial buying power such as made its appearance on the decline a week ago all demand was readily supplied

OIL TALK AIDS PRICE DECLINE

Widespread Gossip Predicts Another Slice in Values.

BY STUART P. WEST

(Copyright 1923)

Wall Street New York April 30—Operations for the decline on the stock exchange took full advantage today of the widespread talk of another cut in oil prices

A further reduction especially in the Mid-continent field has been discussed in oil trade circles for some days past Many believe that inasmuch as the big oil interests are prominent figures in the stock market the over production of oil and the necessity of correcting it by price cuts have temporarily influenced sentiment in these high quarters to mild the share list as a whole

MARKET DOWNWARD

At all events weakness in the oils and the sugars started the market downward this morning and as the day went on other sections became involved until the decline was general

Railway stocks despite the fact that they had not had the advance that others had went down with the rest Some special selling appeared in Pack Island because in contrast to other roads it showed in March another operating deficit

NO SURPRISE

The street was not surprised by the action of the Studebaker directors in not declaring any extra dividend The net bull position in this stock is based upon the extraordinary earnings and consequently much was made of the statement that net for the first quarter was equal to $8 a share on Studebaker common It is understood that April was even better than any month so far and that insiders look for the second quarter to show something like $10 on the stock

Eastman Kodak was off at one time nearly three points on the charge by the federal trade commission that it was a conspiracy to monopolize the film business

Cuban Cane Sugar preferred was the weakest of the sugar group final priced specialties like Dupont and Stewart Warner were naturally particularly sensitive to the selling movement

PROFESS OPTIMISM

The speculative element which always shapes its needs by the course of the stock tape confessed to be optimistic over recent developments in outside trade A great deal was said about the over production of oil and about the necessity of further price cuts as a remedy

Few who have impartially examined statistics regarding sugar production and consumption have any idea that the government beginning its suit against the coffee and sugar exchange today will be able to establish its claim that the rise of the last few months was unwarranted

BUYERS STRIKE

The threat of a nation-wide buyers strike is something more worthy of consideration but it was doubted today whether in the absence of any spirit of sacrifice such as made possible conservation measures during the war and in the absence of any effective organization sugar consumption could be cut enough to make an important impression upon prices

Nevertheless the sugar trade uncertainties were stressed in speculative quarters interested in seeing the stock market down So too was the evidence that has appeared during the last few days that the demand for cotton at the mills has slackened and which was felt again today in a sharp decline in cotton prices The more substantial judgment that is the judgment outside of highly speculative circles is that nothing has happened in the trade situation of the last month to justify a pessimistic attitude

BOND MARKET IN DAY OF DULLNESS

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES

(Copyright 1923)

New York April 30—Dullness and reaction characterized the bond market today Despite the prevalent inactivity however traders were inclined to look at the future with optimism

In the first place they approved the new policy announced by the federal reserve board with regard to control of the credit situation Secondly the check to the advance in commodity prices generally was regarded as helpful to the bond market and finally the subsiding of speculation in stocks removed one adverse factor to better prices for bonds Liberties were generally lower today with the market a little more active than last week There was very little doing in high grade rails and industrials Speculative rails were generally lower especially the Missouri Kansas and Texas adjustments in which trading has been so active during the past few weeks Foreign bonds continued firm

The feature in the foreign list was the dealings in the Mexican 4s which also sold up to a new high and the advance in Uruguay 8s

WOOL.

Boston April 30—The local wool market refuses to become excited over the strength in foreign markets which were notably firm today Neither do local interests incline toward excitement over the high prices being paid in the west The movement of wool on Summer street is distinctly sluggish High grade staples were in good demand but medium and coarse wools were hard to sell

DRY GOODS.

New York April 30—The local dry goods market started the week sluggishly There was a continuation today of the return of the weakness that marked Saturday's short business day There were more inquiries but manufacturers still hesitated to put in orders in the belief that they should wait until the cotton market shows signs of more stability Print cloths were unchanged at 10⅝ for 64x60 s and 12¼ for 68x72 s

The local raw silk market was fairly active today with prices unchanged except for best No 1x best No 1 and Kansai No 1 these prices being two five cents to 9 55 9 50 and 9 45 respectively

Aladdin's Lamp Was All Right in Its Way

Whenever Aladdin wanted anything, which was pretty often, he used to rub his lamp—and after a while his private genii would bring it to him.

That was considered good service in the days before classified ads were put at the public's beck and call.

You, and everybody else, for that matter, are like Aladdin—you have a good many wants and wishes to be satisfied all the time.

But where you have an advantage over the Arabian gentleman is—that you have at your immediate service a scientific, universal medium like The Review's A-B-C Classified Section.

Unusual opportunities await your attention in the classified section today. Let the "A-B-C Genii" make your wishes come true.

Says Insurance Should Be Part of Marriage Rite

Judge Charles J. Orbison Addresses 350 On Protecting Estates.

"I believe that life insurance should ve a part in every marriage cere-ny. There is no estate that is safe ainst the claims of creditors and er hazards that may take it from se for whom it was intended. ery man owes to his greatest cred-rs, the wife who he has sworn at altar to cherish and care for and children that he has brought into world, that they be safeguarded or his death and protected against storms of financial adversity. re is no will that cannot be ken, but when the name of the ficiary appears on a life insur-e policy, it is as certain as death taxes that that money will go hat person and no one else."

SPEAKS TO 350.

eaking before 350 Decatur busi-men and members of the Central ois Life Underwriters at a noon heon in the Y. M. C. A. annex nday, Judge Charles J. Orbison of probate court of Indianapolis told startling way the hazards that tes are subject to. He spoke as wyer, telling the multitude of s that estates might be diverted m their intended course.

"Land values, merchandise and ocks and bonds are variable. No tter how shrewd the investor, he nnot know positively that the restments he has made will turn t right after he is gone. Insur-ce invariably will PROTECT WIVES AND CHILDREN.

"Except for a mere pittance al-wed the widow and children, the w is inexorable. Creditors claim take the rest," and Judge Orbi-quoted illustrations of great es-wiped out by claims of cred-"Our greatest creditors are our and children," he said

You may say that your will is d and water tight. Let me tell that if weeping relatives come to and any other lawyer with a will be broken. If the estate is big and enough we will have it broken thin thirty days. We will prove the maker of the will was either crazy as a loon or influenced unduly and the jury will support us."

EXPENSIVE LITIGATION.

Judge Orbison told of the expense of litigation that detracts from many n estate's value after it has gone ough the courts. He told of law-s fees that took fifty per cent of estate to break a will. He showed w a year or more might pass while estate was in settlement and dur-g that time the heirs would be un-ovided for.

"Life insurance is the only sound d safe basis for an estate. It can-t be touched by the greed and arice that is bound to show up hen an estate is left. I have no terest in life insurance companies. am a lawyer, but I firmly believe life insurance as a means of in-ring for the welfare of loved on s after our death."

WINS AUDIENCE.

As a speaker, Judge Orbison won e immediate friendship of his audi-nce. His fine humor and striking instances combined with a force-l style in his delivery made s talk one most interesting that has been heard in Decatur for some

Civic, Retail and City club members and members of the Bar As-ciation brought the crowd at the reon to over the 350 mark.

The meeting was presided over by C. E. Golly, president of the Decatur fe Underwriters, who introduced the speaker. The Rivoli quartet sang several numbers before Judge Orbi on's talk and were applauded and recalled again and again.

Guy Lipscomb announced that the Rotary Club was sponsoring the work the society for Crippled Children, and urged all to attend a showing of ms at the high school at 8:30 Thursday evening showing the work of the society.

H. B. saw eight young women wading in Stevens creek early Sunday morning. He was fishing and not saying on them. The water was cold and they did not stay in long.

D. L. C. saw four boys in swimming Sunday.

R. O. B. saw a man letting down a kite string in the casing of the Bledsoe oil well Sunday. The plumb line went to a depth of thirty-five feet before it struck bottom. The large casing stands full of water.

J. E. H. coming out of the National Bank of Decatur overheard a woman who was evidently showing a visiting friend the city, say in passing, "This is the National Bank of De-catur."

H. G. saw a woman come out of the elevator at the Orlando hotel carrying an umbrella. Upon stepping into the lobby she raised the umbrella, strolled calmly to the door, lowered it, passed out into the street, raised it again and went on.

DRIVES AWAY WITH ANOTHER'S CORN

H. E. Black of Argenta Offers Reward For Information.

H. E. Black of Argenta is offering a reward for information as to the name of the man who drove off with two sacks of seed corn belonging to Mr. Black Sunday.

Mr. Black and family had been visiting his cousin, Mrs. Walter O'Brien, southwest of Blackland, Sunday. Mr. Black had bought some seed corn of Mr. O'Brien and decided to take it home on a trailer. When south of the St. Louis bridge two sacks of the corn fell off the trailer. A man passed by and told Mr. Black that he had dropped some of the sacks. Mr. Black backed up but by that time a man in a Ford car had picked up the two sacks and put one on each side of his own car. The man stopped and Mr. Black supposed he was going to give back the corn, but suddenly he stepped on the gas and drove swiftly away, taking the corn with him.

TOURING CAR AND ENGINE COLLIDE

Harold Holt Escapes By Jumping Out Of Car.

A touring car driven by Harold Holt, 1354 North Church street, collided with a huge Wabash freight engine, No. 2506, pulling second No. 90, at the North Main street crossing of the Wabash about 3 o'clock Sunday morning. The touring car was rather badly damaged. According to the engine crew, Holt was the only occupant and he escaped uninjured by jumping out of the car. The engine crew also reported that Holt came upon the crossing at a high rate of speed.

At a crossing of the Wabash protected by gates in Urbana, Wilton Leacock, motorcyclist, dashed between the ends of the gates while they were down Monday morning and ran into Wabash passenger train No. 30, Sidney to Champaign. He was not seriously injured but his machine was smashed.

INSURANCE MEN IN SALES CONGRESS

"Service" Keynote of One Day Meeting.

127 MEN REGISTER

Thomas J. Houston Unable to Be Present.

"It is my hope that every insurance man here at this sales congress will leave it better equipped to render efficient service to the insurance-buying public," said C. E. Golly, president of the Decatur Life Underwriters' association opening the sales congress of Illinois underwriters in the Y. M. C. A. Monday morning.

"Insurance has rendered invaluable service to thousands of people. It is a business that renders service," said Sherman McClelland, president of the Decatur A. of C. in his address of welcome to the convention.

"It is my belief that the underwriter renders as valuable service to mankind as do the ministers of the country," said F. H. Kuhl, president of the Springfield association.

SERVICE, KEYNOTE.

"Service," is the key-word of the one day sales congress of the Central Illinois Life Underwriters which opened at 10 a. m. in the "Y" room with 127 life insurance men from the cities and towns of the central part of the state present. It was further stressed in the address by H. E. Walker of St. Louis, vice president of the National Underwriter association on "The Life Insurance Man of Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow."

He pictured the insurance man of other days setting out with the rate book and a desire to make money, showed the highly efficient man of today, equipped to advise and help his prospect to best adapt his insurance to the needs of himself and his estate, and predicted a future that will make insurance a business of service, a profession.

JOINT LUNCHEON

The latter part of the morning session was taken up with a business meeting which adjourned for the joint luncheon of underwriters and members of the civic clubs of the city and the bar association.

The afternoon session heard addresses of Roy H. Heartman of Des Moines on "Scientific Life Underwriting," C. M. Thompson, dean of the College of Commerce of the University of Illinois on "On the Other End of the Log," and Mr. Edmunson of Chicago, substituting for R. W. Stevens, vice president of the Illinois Life Insurance Co. who was unable to attend.

Thomas J. Houston, insurance commissioner of Illinois who was scheduled to talk was unable to attend.

MANY TAXPAYERS STAND IN LINE

Last Day Before One Per Cent Is Added.

When the county treasurer's office opened Monday morning a double-line of taxpayers was waiting, and when noon came there were almost as many in line. The penalty of 1 per cent will be added to all taxes that remain unpaid Tuesday morning. Hundreds of people delay paying their taxes until the very last day and then they all seem to rush for the court house at the same time. The late comers always have to wait in line for a long time. In the crowd there are many new faces this year, but it is also true that there are many who never pay their taxes until about time for the penalty to go on.

MAY SEEK FUNDS FOR RECOUNTING

Eight Subscription Blanks Ready For Circulation.

It was reported Monday morning that Alex Van Praag, present commissioner of streets, whose term expires tonight, had prepared eight duplicate copies of subscription blanks for the solicitation of subscriptions to a fund to enable him to contest the election of Tom Pitner for commissioner and to finance the recount and other costs which would be involved in such a legal battle.

On being asked if there was anything to say about the possibility of a contest Mr. Van Praag remarked Monday morning—

"There is nothing to say at this time."

A man who had seen these subscription blanks said that they were eight in number, all duplicates, and he understood that they were being prepared for circulation about town for the raising of funds for the contest.

The grading of three fractional sections of Route 2, in McLean County will be included in this letting. Section 55—A starts at the Dewitt county line and extends north 2.7 miles. The other two sections are 62-A and 63-A which are 2.03 and .95 miles respectively and are both north of Bloomington.

The only other section of Route 2 is in Ogle county and is known as 37-A. It is 9.95 miles in length. It is on the big bend of Route 2 where it swings east to Dixon. The section is north of Dixon.

At the same time proposals on twenty miles of paving and seventy-one bridges, in addition to a number of culverts will be received.

The grading contracts foretell where the pavement will be laid. The announcements indicate work soon will be started in many counties.

NO FUNDS LEFT FOR NEW CITY COUNCIL

Not More Than $2000 for General Fund.

Jack Sprat could eat no fat
His Wife could eat no lean
And so between the two
They licked the platter clean

Decatur's new city council will find that Jack and his spouse have been at the budget platter—it is so nearly clean that what is left would not soil a dish towel.

LITTLE LEFT.

The water works department appropriation for the year may have $1,000 in it as a balance, the police may come through with $300 but even that may be wiped out, the zoning appropriation has a balance of $400 and the health department has prospects of having a balance of $200 but all other departments, according to A. L. McNabb, city comptroller, are broke.

Public improvement, street repairs, street cleaning and other subsidiary funds of that department are all broke, as are also the fire, law, salary, sinking and other funds provided for in the annual appropriations made each year when the budget is prepared.

START NEW.

"The new council will come into office with no balances left over," said Mr. McNabb, who will be the new commissioner of finance. "In fact we will be worse off than the council was a year ago when there was a total of not quite $11,000 in unused balances.

It was not expected that there would be any balances left in the various funds when the appropriations were made last year. In fact with everything trimmed to the very lowest point because of payments necessary to be made on the water impounding project the members of the council then thought that they would be very fortunate to get through on the amounts appropriated.

There will not be more than $2,000 left to revert to the general fund when the fiscal year ends tonight.

THIEF TAKES SPARK COILS FROM TRUCK

Ben Perkins Finds Them Missing After Leaving Car at Roadside.

Ben Perkins, county highway patrolman for the southeast district of Decatur, lost two spark coils from his Ford truck by theft and was obliged to come into town Monday to buy new ones. The truck was left at the roadside for a short time and when he came back to it the coils were missing.

"If you had come along about an hour ago," said a farmer in the neighborhood. "I could have told you just about who took the coils. A man passed here in a Ford hitting on two cylinders and no doubt he helped himself to the coils."

"If he had left his old coils," said Patrolman Perkins, "perhaps I could have patched them up and used them. But he didn't do that."

The persons appearing are, Leslie Harkness (cornet solo); Constance Waltz (piano solo); Lethias Eckert (French horn solo); Rollin Pease (cornet solo).

Short discussion upon the candidates for the oration number of the program was held during the class meeting Monday. Discussion will probably be completed Tuesday and balloting held Wednesday. This will complete the commencement program.

NEW COUNCIL IN AT 10 TUESDAY

PARK ROWDYISM TO BE STOPPED

Girls Insulted in Nelson Park Sunday.

Roughs who infest Decatur parks are due for some punishment which certainly will be inflicted to the limit—and it may not be confined to court proceedings either if a performance which was put on Sunday morning in Nelson park is repeated.

Many girls who work in stores during the week and who are otherwise confined indoors frequently make an early start Sunday morning, hike to the parks and there cook their breakfasts.

SURROUNDED BY BOYS.

Sunday morning three young women went to Nelson park for the purpose of cooking their breakfast and as soon as they arrived they were surrounded by a group of boys and young men who used language which should not be permitted anywhere, least of all in the park, and finally annoyed these young women to such an extent that they gave up their project and returned home, the gang of rowdies following them until they had almost reached their homes.

One of the girls was a daughter of one of the city commissioners and what he said about the situation would make unpleasant reading for the roughs who participated.

TO BREAK IT UP.

Frank Torrence, who was standing near while the commissioner told the story, said that is the girls had gone to the custodian's house there and had telephoned to him that the gangsters would have had a busy time.

Authorities are determined to break up the abuse of the privileges in the parks. Two couples caught by Mr. Torrence at Fairview Sunday night in disorderly conduct paid $74 in fines.

"We will not tolerate rowdyism nor disorderly conduct," said the big fisted boss of the parks this morning.

"Just let us know when anything of that kind comes up and we will certainly lay it on strong."

THROW BRICKS INTO COTTAGE

Vandals Visit Boys Camp East Of Decatur On Lake.

Vandals were found to have thrown bricks through some of the windows in the cottage which is located on the boys' camp ground near the Wabash railroad on Lake Decatur when a group of Decatur men, interested in the scout work, went out to inspect the camp site Sunday. The vandals, not being content with breaking the glass, had thrown bricks through so that they smashed the sash as well.

I. C. TO FIGHT PANA BUS LINES

Now Running Four Trains Each Way.

I. T. S. SEEKS TRACKS

Would Electrify Wabash Champaign-Sidney.

It is believed that when the hearing of two bus line companies to operate bus lines between Decatur and Pana come up before the state utilities commission in Springfield Thursday, that the Illinois Central will be on hand to fight the granting of any certificates of necessity to these lines.

It is known the company has been gathering information relative to the bus service. The railroad company at present is giving a good service of four trains each way a day between Decatur and Pana and three trains each way on Sundays. To permit the bus lines, say the railroad officials would only serve to split up what patronage the I. C. now has.

It is thought the state commission may take action similar to that in the hearing of a bus-line paralleling the B. and O. between Beardstown and Springfield. In this instance, residents along the line of the railroad appeared and fought the bus line proposal on the ground that it would probably necessitate the railroad's curtailing its service.

WANTS TO ELECTRIFY.

That the Illinois Traction System wants to lease and electrify the Champaign-Sidney branch of the Wabash is a report coming out of Urbana but it is also understood the Wabash officials do not look with much favor on such a plan. Superintendent J. E. Stumpf of the Decatur division, of which the branch line in question is a part, was not in the city Monday so no further information than that out of Urbana could be had.

The Urbana report says the electric line wants especially that part of the Wabash between Champaign and Urbana so as to operate a belt line around the two cities and also wants a similar arrangement with the Illinois Central on the latter's Havana branch so as to have a belt line in the west part of Champaign. The Wabash uses its branch line only in the day time while the I. T. S., it is said, would only want to use it at night for freight hauling purposes.

The places for the banquet are all taken, and no more reservations can be accepted, indicating that this is to be one of the popular features of the meeting.

Two Saw Way Out of Jail

Jack Malone and Harry Hicks Escape Sunday.

Jack Malone, ex-convict arrested for carrying concealed weapons, and Harry Hicks, charged with grand larceny, sawed their way out of the county jail late Saturday night and escaped. Their escape was not discovered until Sunday at noon, when fourteen dinners were brought to the fourteen prisoners, and only twelve were in the room.

It is thought that Jack Malone had a saw concealed about his personage although he was rather thoroughly examined when brought into the jail. They had sawed off a bar on the east side of the jail near the floor, making an opening of 7½ by 14 inches. These two prisoners were the only ones small enough to get through the narrow opening. They had then kicked out the steel wire window on the outside of the opening.

COLLETT AT MEETING

To Complete Payment for Dreamland Park.

A huge bouquet of roses presented to Commissioner J. F. Mattes, head of the health and safety department, by the members of his staff in the department was the most prominent feature of the council meeting Monday morning.

The presentation was made by A. L. Cope, building inspector, on behalf of all of the members of the staff and in his talk Mr. Cope expressed the good-will of the members of the department over which Mr. Mattes had been the head for so long.

Mr. Mattes spoke briefly and informally, referring particularly to the loyalty of the members of the department force to the work which had been done during the administration.

COLLETT PRESENT.

Hazel Collett, who will be the superintendent of streets under Phillip Kayser, commissioner-elect in charge of that department, was an interested on-looker at Monday morning's session.

Mayor-elect Elmer Elder was present a short time and Tom Pitner, newly elected commissioner of health and safety, was present during the short meeting.

Because the necessary papers were not completed for clearing of the indebtedness on the Dreamland park addition to Fairview park the council adjourned, after a very short session, until 2:30 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Mayor Borchers explained that with the money still in the park fund at the end of this fiscal year he would pay off the entire indebtedness of $7,500 and $360 interest on the Dreamland park tract, and also the $1200 with $54 interest on the Hahn tract portion of the Watkins addition to Nelson park.

But Ralph J. Monroe, corporation counsel, had not had time to complete all of the papers in time for the morning session and at the suggestion of the mayor the council adjourned until 2:30 o'clock.

By making these payments the money in the park fund for the year will be practically exhausted but the park indebtedness will be reduced by that amount.

THREE YOUNG MEN NARROWLY ESCAPE

Try to Beat Train in Blue Mound.

Three young men, names not learned, can attribute the fact that they are alive today to the regulations that carried the fast Wabash passenger train through Blue Mound Sunday afternoon on the north track instead of the south track. It was the old story of trying to beat a train to the crossing, but the customary tragedy was averted by a matter of three or four feet and the fraction of a second.

The three youths were traveling in a coupe and raced along Main street, parallel with the railroad track, turned onto the north and south street and headed for the crossing at breakneck speed. Despite the fact that the train was almost upon them and the engineer was sounding a warning frantically, the driver of the car did not slacken speed until he had rushed into the right of way. Then by a quick turn he threw his car to the left on the south track, just as the passenger train whizzed by on the north track four feet distant. Observers saw it for a foolhardy stunt, and an exceedingly narrow escape at that.

BORN

To Mr. and Mrs. Hugh D. Keim, 1261 [illegible], April 30, a son.
